Selectmen seek delay of hearing on town center

by Arlene Surprenant
The Wilmington Board of Selectmen Monday night decided to request postponement of the state's public hearing on the 25 percent design phase of the town center project. The hearing was slated for this fall.

Though the hearing has already been delayed several times since its original date was set last fall, selectmen felt the extra time is needed to glean pertinent information on such issues as traffic flow being addressed in a proposed feasibility study. The study, if funding comes through from EOCD, will be undertaken by the redevelopment authority (WRA), which has jurisdiction over the relocation of town center. The new Burlington Avenue Bridge and reconstruction of roadways in the area fall under the jurisdiction of the Mass Department of Public Works.

WRA Chairman Jay Donovan was concerned with any further delay. He told the Town Crier "I think it (more delay) would have naturally happened anyway." He explained that every time there's a change or delay, plans have to go to the federal government, causing further delay.

State Rep. James Miceli added that "with a project of this magnitude, there's going to be delays."

Donovan was also concerned that test borings are being made in town center before the public hearing.

Usually, he explained, this is not done until the 25 percent design phase is approved. "I just hope they (the state) will incorporate people's comments as they're supposed to do," he added.

Tony Gentile, whose wife Denise runs a beauty shop which will be affected by the relocation, said that in a discussion with engineers, they too said nothing would be changed.

Miceli denied saying nothing would be changed. He was adamant, however, that no matter what happens, the bridge will be replaced.

"That bridge has got to be replaced before someone gets killed," he explained, urging selectmen to enforce the eight ton limit in the meantime.

Bill Doyle, owner of Church Street Hardware, pointed out it doesn't matter if the state replaces the bridge with or without "back up" roads. In the end, he added, "you're still going to wipe us out."

When Miceli questioned what the WRA board was proposing for town center and whether they were trying to act as developers, Donovan answered the board would keep its options open until the feasibility study is complete.

Miceli then explained that the strongest opposition to the project comes from those businessmen who presently rent office space and don't want to relocate at higher rents. Donovan explained later the study would look into market rates and would offer options to help renters relocate at the lowest possible rates. One possibility might be to move some businesses to a commercial area being proposed for Cross Street by Yentile's Farm, he added.

Several times throughout the discussion, Miceli assured selectmen "I'm not trying to sell you on this thing (project)." He said if it were the consensus of town boards, officials, and the public not to go further with the project, the state would comply.

In an update on two other state projects affecting the town center project, Miceli told of serious problems which have recently surfaced.

Improvements to the 193/Rt. 129 intersection may have to be put off indefinitely because of wetland replacement plans. Miceli said the federal government did not like the plan to compensate wetlands and now the project is on hold. Bids for the job were expected to go out this winter and construction slated to begin in late 1987 or 1988.

Bids on the New Boston Street Bridge were expected to go out in October 1987 with construction scheduled to begin shortly thereafter. However, according to Miceli, there is "a strong possibility" that hazardous waste from Woburn might have seeped underground to the site.

"God knows how long we'll wait (now)," commented Miceli.

Downstairs

Many of the corridors in Wilmington High School look like they have been mothballed, with plastic sheets covering much of the area. Actually, the plastic is masking for painting. The workman in this picture is attaching new hardware to a classroom door. The scene is in the first floor corridor of the Adams Street wing.

Upstairs

The second floor of the Adams Street wing, meanwhile, is all painted, cleaned, and ready for students. With school scheduled to open on Sept. 8, workmen are racing to make the school ready.

Town counsel rebuts critics

by Arlene Surprenant
In answer to an article last week on the role of town counsel, Alan Altman told the Town Crier he has a responsibility to the Wilmington Board of Selectmen, town manager, and all other governing bodies, "exclusive of the school committee."

As town counsel, he said in an interview, he can work for the school committee on a retainer basis the same as he did before in a special drawn out court case for the Water and Sewer Commission.

"Actually, I'm surprised Mr. Accardi doesn't know what my role is as I've been town counsel for 22 years," he said, referring to school committeeman Tony Accardi, who two weeks ago drew attention to a suit brought by the McLaughlin-Mayflower Moving Co. against the Wilmington Public Schools. Altman said he would be willing to represent the School Department in that case in September for a retainer and he said he let them know this prior to the "furor" over his role.

By law, Altman continued, the school committee is empowered to appropriate its own funds from the school budget for legal counsel. Massachusetts General Law provides up to $10,000 per year can be used for collective bargaining. And since 1985, said Altman, the school committee, by law, "may employ legal counsel for general purposes" also.

When asked about the alleged seven month delay in handing down a legal decision concerning $12,000 moving costs, Altman admitted it took him a while to get around to researching an answer and sending back his decision.

"This was a low priority item in my scheme of things," he said, explaining that at the time he was busy with more time-consuming matters such as the Reading Light, Vassallo, and Corey cases.

According to Altman, he has been in contact with school administrators. He said he talked to the school's acting business manager last week and Supt. Robert Horan Tuesday to try to find out what the school committee's expenditures in legal fees have been. Though he hasn't received the information yet, he says he expects to obtain it.

"I feel I have rendered superior service to the Town of Wilmington," Altman said carefully. He stressed that most people don't realize that half of his $41,000 salary goes toward expenses. These include maintaining a legal secretary, paying overhead on his office, and such miscellaneous items as telephone, law books, and other materials. In addition, he said, he pays for his own car, fuel, and travel expenses to and from court.

Were he to go into private practice he could probably make more money, but he wouldn't, he explained, because he considers his job "a labor of love" and he "loves every minute of it."

Author's Note: Selectmen this week agreed to an executive session in the near future to give Town Counsel Alan Altman "guidance" in the "direction" he should go. The action was taken from a suggestion by Jim Stewart that this be done before things are "blown out of proportion."

Search winds down

Wilmington police are downplaying an incident on Monday which may have been an attempted kidnapping of a 9-year-old girl. Police are, however, seeking a man for questioning.

The incident occurred on Dobson Street between 1:30 and 2 p.m., when a girl walking a dog noticed a van which seemed to be following her. As the van approached, with the driver opening the door, she fled home, reporting the incident to her mother.

She described the driver as a white male in his late 20's, with red curly hair, a red moustache, and having an earring in his left ear. He was driving a red van with a gold stripe, with either ladders or a luggage rack on the roof.

The description was similar to that of a man who abducted a 6-year-old girl in Reading last week. She was later released unharmed in Wakefield.

Officer Robert Spencer, juvenile officer of the Wilmington Police Dept., said he said there was no cause for public alarm.

Labor Day Activities

Where's the telethon?

The Jerry Lewis Telethon for Muscular Dystrophy has become an annual Labor Day event. For many years, local firefighters ran a phone center, along with an auction, concert, carnival and other activities. In their most successful years, they raised upwards of $80,000 locally.

In recent years, the local effort has waned, due to difficulties in securing a location for the weekend events.

This year, there will be no telethon activities in Wilmington or Tewksbury. Several local people, however, will be volunteering at the phone center in Lowell.

Telethon activities in Lowell will start at 11 a.m. Sunday with an "MDA Day" fair at the park across from Market Mills on Market Street. A "Kidsfair" will open at 1 p.m. at Lucy Larcom Park.

Puppet shows performed by the Junior Rangers, and a magic show by Paul Lacroix; and kids if you bring your own tee-shirt you can paint your own design or favorite slogan on it.

Music will be provided throughout the afternoon and refreshments will be sold. Proceeds from Kids Fair will be donated to the Muscular Dystrophy Association. Kids Fair '86 is sponsored by Lowell National Historical Park and the Regatta Festival Committee. Admission is free, though there is a charge for some games. For more information call 459-1000.

The telethon will be broadcast on Channel 5, starting at 9 p.m. Sunday. The broadcast runs all night, and all day Monday until 6:30 p.m.

"Mill Workers Day" at Market Mills

"Neighborhood Memories" is the theme of "Mill Workers Day" that will take place August 30 at Market Mills in Lowell.

The Market Mills Courtyard will be transformed into a mill room with racks, wooden box carts, bolts of cloth, gears, tools, and dollies. Former mill workers, dressed in clothing dating from the turn of the century to the 1940's, will discuss the operation of machinery on exhibit. Tables will be set up in the courtyard for the display of mill and neighborhood artifacts, and photographs of mill scenes and historic Lowell scenes, which the public is invited to bring with them to the event.

Big band music will add to the 1940's atmosphere of the day, and light refreshments will be provided.

The event is sponsored by Lowell National Historical Park, Lowell Historic Preservation Commission, The University of Lowell, and the Mill Workers Advisory Group. The event is free and open to the public. For more information, contact Lowell National Historical Park, 169 Merrimack St., Lowell, MA. 01852 or call 617-459-1000.

If you have something that you would like to add to Coming Events, contact Gaye Smith, Coming Events Coordinator, at 658-2346, or mail information to the Town Crier, Attn. Gaye Smith, P.O. Box 460 Wilmington MA. 01887.

Governor Dukakis to attend Livingston Taylor Concert

Governor Michael Dukakis will make a special appearance at the Market Mills Summer Stage Series. The Governor will come to downtown Lowell on Thursday evening, August 28, to participate in the excitement of the grand finale performance of Livingston Taylor.

The Chambers of Commerce and Industry outdoor concert series has been running each Thursday evening throughout the summer. Liv Taylor is returning to Lowell to make an encore appearance.

The Thursday evening concert begins at 7:30 p.m. at the Market Street stage in downtown Lowell. The concert is free of charge to the public. Concert goers are advised to arrive early and bring blankets and lawn chairs to the outdoor stage. For more information, call 454-5633.

Skirts 'N' Flirts

Are you an exercise dropout? It's nothing to be ashamed of because it happens to people with the best of intentions. The Skirts 'N' Flirts Square Dance Club invites couples to a free introductory fun night of dancing at the West Intermediate School, Carter Lane, Wilmington at 8:00 P.M. on Thursday evenings Sept. 11, 18 and 25. This is a personal invitation to area adults to take their bodies back to school to learn how to feel younger, stronger, and more energetic. Regular weekly classes will begin Thursday, Oct. 2.

Square dancing is an activity that can provide men and women with regular exercise to assist in improving their health and fitness. Rhythmic and continuous exercise that involves a large percentage of the body's musculature is the best way to attain cardiovascular fitness.

The strain, the sweat, and the exhaustion that cause orthopedic injuries are not a part of square dancing. Square dancing doesn't fatigue - it refreshes and regenerates. It provides for the active support and encouragement of a spouse or friend. One study found that a supportive spouse actually doubled the rate of adherence to an exercise program.

Another plus is social support - exercising in a group. Square dancing is also an activity that can provide an emotional release from the tensions and frustration in today's high pressure society. It requires no special talents or previous dancing ability. It facilitates interaction while generating fun and laughter. For further information, call 658-6211, 658-4031 or 657-4309.

Registration for new students will begin at 9:45 a.m. and previously registered students are asked to go immediately to their classrooms.

Offering team teachers in every classroom, the Congregational Church considers its program to be of the highest quality, both educationally and religiously. Mrs. Rita Masters is our director of Christian Education and Mrs. Jean Holmes is our Church School superintendent.

Conveniently located in the center of Tewksbury, at the junction of East and Main streets, directly opposite the town hall, the church has ample parking space in its own parking lot and the adjacent BayBank parking lot. The worship hour is conveniently scheduled at 10 a.m. so that families can all come and go at the same time. The Rev. Millin is available in his office weekday mornings (851-9411) and will try to provide any information you may need regarding Church School or worship, and is available for counselling by appointment.

Plimoth Plantation holds muster day on Aug. 30

Plimoth Plantation will reenact a militia muster on Saturday, August 30.

The day's activities begin at 9:00 a.m. with traditional English sports and a preparation for a great feast later in the day. The first call to arms will be ordered by Captain Standish at 11:00 a.m. The assembled militia of 35 men will march by drumbeat to the newly harvested fields outside the village palisade, displaying period methods of attack and defense in mock battles conducted on the field.

Throughout the day, visitors may participate in such games as pitching the bar or nine-pins and join smaller militia units for lessons in swordplay and in handling twelve-foot pikes. Fencing contests, target shooting, and wrestling matches between colonists may be observed during this special event at Plimoth Plantation.

The plantation is located on Warren Avenue (Route 3A), three miles south of Downtown Plymouth. It is open daily from 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. Admission is $6.25 for adults, and $3.75 for children. Children under 5 are admitted free.

Ron Swasey: A man for all seasons

by Arlene Surprenant

Being recreation-director is like being "a chief cook and bottlewasher," says Wilmington's longtime holder of that position, Ron Swasey.

"This job is soup to nuts, administration to common labor, and it's basically a oneman department," explains Ron. He goes on to tell you he likes the job's variety and the fact that he may spend half his day inside doing office work and half his time outside picking up glass at Silver Lake, for instance, and "that mix is fine with me."

It quickly becomes clear what the year-round job really entails as we spend two and a half hours chatting in his large office, an office which might best be described as decorated in organized clutter.

There is a travel and entertainment area with rows of brochures and pamphlets, coupons and passes for residents seeking an entertainment price break. There is a working area filled with a desk overflowing with papers, a phone, file cabinets, and a copier. There are boxes filled to capacity with sports equipment and a table laden with toys to keep youngsters amused. There is an eye-catching bulletin board boasting children's artwork and photos of kids caught up in a round of recreation activities. There is, finally, posters on skiing and Bretton Woods, an appealing framed collage, and signs that indoctrinate with such truisms as "Neatness: Sure Sign of a Sick Mind." The whole place seems as comfortable as the red print armchair gracing one corner of the room.

On this day, Ron is in the process of completing arrangements for a Red Sox game that night and locating tables for Beach Day. He is also interviewing for a replacement for his right hand clerk, Joan Goulet. He is interrupted by costumed playgrounders competing in a Lip Sync contest outside, members of the Police Association and the town maintenance department, and a telephone that rarely stops ringing. His daily lists of things to do are traditionally long and involved.

"I used to think there was a quiet time in here, but now I see there are peaks and valleys." Today, you think, must be one of those peaks.

The recreation department has a long history in Wilmington. It's run by a fulltime director, who answers to the Town Manager, and a part time clerk. Ron's job is made easier by the Recreation Commission, which serves in an advisory capacity, as well as the generosity of any number of volunteers, local businesses, and organizations.

Ron has been Wilmington's Recreation Director for 15 years. He obtained a BS in recreation from Missouri State University and an MS in community recreation from Northeastern University. His mom and dad were in government as well as in the educational field, and he and three other brothers have been involved in one way or the other, with education, recreation, and sports.

Ron raves about his hometown of Exeter, "one of the nicest towns in New Hampshire," and one of the oldest, most historic seacoast towns in the state. He tells you Exeter has a Swasey Bandstand and a Swasey Parkway named after industrialist Ambrose Swasey, a distant relative. He elaborates on his love affair with history and geography and informs you he may be related to the Commander of the Mayflower ("I would personally doubt it, but it's interesting. One of these days I'm going to try to substantiate this.")

"I also grew up loving sports and recreation," he tells you. Ron explains he always felt he would major in physical education or recreation, but eventually he "gravitated" to the latter when he found he was "getting burnt out on the negative effects of competition."

Anyone who knows Ron is probably familiar with his outspoken views on the "abuse" of youth sports today. He cringes when confronted by coaches who have a "win at any cost" attitude, an attitude he feels is detrimental to many youngsters today.

To Ron, sports activities are meant to be fun and enjoyed by the whole family.

"Today, we need the family unit. We're all going our separate ways too much. We need more family-oriented recreation." Not surprisingly, Ron and his family of four live his credo as often as possible.

Just last year, for example, the whole family enjoyed a ski trip to Colorado. Then there are quick vacation trips - as often as the job allows - to his parents' summer place near Lake Winnepesaukee, to enjoy boating, swimming, fishing, and water skiing. His wife Linda, a business teacher at Shawsheen Tech, teaches lifesaving. Thirteen year old Kara helped in the swim program this year and is taking advanced lifesaving courses. Nine year old Ryan spent some time this summer in computer camp and will be attending a hockey camp.

"Outdoor recreation is just the greatest thing in the world," Ron enthuses. True to form, he has tried everything from rappelling to scuba diving and encourages others, like boss Buzz Stapeczynski, to join in the fun.

Ron points out that in his capacity as recreation director, he is part of the second largest industry in the nation, that of leisure services. Leisure services in Wilmington covers a broad area including sports offerings and clinics, day trips, concerts on the common, holiday activities, summer camps and beach activities, and consulting services. He goes on to tell you that since the initiation of Prop 2 1/2, 57 percent of the recreation department's budget has been cut, and what was previously a growing department, just remains stable in a lot of ways.

There are, however, many bright spots in a wide range of Wilmington offerings.

"We see our sports clinics as a growing area," Ron says, adding that "a lot of people are spending a lot of money" to send their children out of town for special help. By offering specialized clinics, Ron hopes to keep the children in town with their families.

New this year are VCR tapes from LL Bean on canoeing and fly fishing which any resident may borrow for a period of time. Ron explains he's expanded the department travel area as evidenced by the recent spring trip to Disneyworld. He reasons many residents don't have access to travel services offered to corporation employees. His department is hoping to pick up the slack.

Ron bemoans the "severe lack" of commercial recreation facilities like movie theatres and bowling centers. But he is pleased with the construction of the new ice arena on Main Street and a new gym at the high school. He feels the public wants more recreational opportunities in New England but he is saddened by the fact that residents don't always support them at town meeting. He explains he has "plenty of ideas but not enough resources to implement them."

These ideas include an expansion of teenage offerings and the involvement of more teachers in programs "to complement what the school system does."

They include the creation of a community center for all ages in a central location like the Swain School. This center could be based on the one in Guilford, Connecticut, where different organizations such as Rotary and the Lions Club each have their own meeting rooms and help support the community oriented building.

His other pet project includes developing the area behind the present town hall into "the largest family recreation area in Wilmington." Ron would eventually like to see located there a park shelter with bathroom facilities, a storage enclosure, picnic tables ("Two of the most popular forms of pleasure are walking and picnicking"), regulation horseshoe pits and basketball hoops, and new slides added to the other playground equipment provided by Wilmington Rotary Club.

In the future, Ron looks forward to having his department "grow just a little bit so I can provide more services to the town."

"I try to see through the power units and get things that should be there for the non-vocal majority." Judging from all he's accomplished these past 15 years, Ron Swasey is well on his way to fulfilling his goals-- and then some.

Rec man

Wilmington Rec Director Ron Swasey takes great pride in this sign which he created many years ago. Its theme is "world understanding through recreation." Ron believes that recreation makes the world -- or the community -- a better place to live.

School bus costs will be higher

by Arlene Surprenant

"We're in a dilemma," admitted Shawsheen Tech School Committeeman Richard Griffin Tuesday night as his board wrestled with a request to increase the school bus bid from $106 to $115 per bus per day.

Attorney Ralph McKenna, representing the Shaughnessey Bus Co., said that he was forced to "reluctantly" seek the increase because bus costs have been going up in recent years. He cited spiraling insurance costs and the need to pay drivers more for oftentimes less hours because of the scarcity of men and women seeking such work.

Shaughnessey has a three year contract with the Tech. This year, according to McKenna, the school altered the terms of the contract by requesting 14 extra buses, and changing from two runs per bus to one.

Though the committee felt there might be some justification to pay the increase, they didn't feel this was possible at this time with their "fixed" budget.

Chairman Jack Miller pointed out that if they were going to be charged for increased costs, they should also check into the contract's de-escalation clause, which covers decreasing gasoline costs.

"We have a very strong obligation to the taxpayer to see we're not paying excessive fuel costs," he added.

Miller went on to chide McKenna for seeking the increase at "the eleventh hour" with school set to open next Wednesday.

McKenna assured the committee the buses would still roll on opening day, even though the company might suffer a loss. He also explained he had requested a discussion of the increase through a letter written to the school committee February 28. That letter, red-faced members soon learned had been read at a meeting in March, but it never received a response.

Committeemen unanimously agreed to a "gentlemen's agreement" to negotiate an increase before April 1 if proof of need is presented and there is a "surplus" in the budget at that time.

Fitness workout for men planned

The Regional Health Center in Wilmington's Community Health Education Department is offering a mens' physical fitness program designed to improve both one's level of cardiovascular health through aerobic exercise and improve one's overall strength through a variety of muscle toning exercises.

"Fitness Workout for Men" will be held Tuesdays and Thursdays from September 16 through October 30 (eight weeks, 16 sessions); 5-5:50 p.m. or 6-6:50 p.m. Participants will be tested to determine their level of physical fitness prior to the program, and will be counseled regarding personal fitness objectives.

Paul Bertrand, community health educator, will be the instructor. His eight-week conditioning program will combine aerobics, strengthening, and flexibility exercise to achieve a total workout.

Class size is limited to 12 participants, and pre-registration is required. Please contact the Community Health Education Department at 657-3910, ext. 567 for more information.

The Regional Health Center in Wilmington is a division of Choate-Symmes Health Services.

JIM MICELI

He is everything a People's Representative Should Be

This is what the watchdog organization overseeing the actions of state government had to say about Rep. Jim Miceli:

"On behalf of Common Cause members throughout the state, I want to thank you for voting in favor of House Rules proposed by Speaker George Keverian and adopted on Jan. 11. The new rules mark a significant and historic change in the procedures of the Mass. House and we believe can bring a much greater degree of fairness, openness and accountability to the House of Representatives."

Frankly speaking

by Kevin John Sowyrda

The Wilmington School Committee has taken a firm stand on the lack of cooperation shown them and the educational system in the community by Town Counsel Alan Altman. School Committeeman Tony Accardi has led the charge in clarifying what the role of town counsel should be as to providing services to his committee and other town boards.

At a recent meeting, Accardi made reference to a court case where the school committee is being sued by the McLaughlin-Mayflower Moving Co. of Nashua, New Hampshire. The company had been retained by the building superintendent to move printing equipment last August to the Swain School. The problem came when it was time to pay the company for their services, which totaled $12,000. Since the law requires bidding on expenditures above $4,000, and since the building superintendent had not conducted any bidding for the job, the school committee wisely sought a decision from town counsel when the bill became due, as to whether or not it could legally be paid. This is where the Wilmington School Committee began to lose their faith in lawyers, or atleast the lawyer employed by the taxpayers of Wilmington.

Town Counsel Alan Altman took a total of seven months, or over 200 days, to okay payment of the McLaughlin-Mayflower Moving Co. bill. Though payment was made, the interest that accrued over the seven month period was not, which is what led to the legal action between that company and the Wilmington School Committee.

Simply put, town counsel took an extraordinary amount of time to give an opinion which was not exactly going to be the legal precedent of the century. The United States Supreme Court issued Roe vs. Wade in less than one seventh of the time it took Alan Altman to tell a local school board that they could pay a bill. And the fact that counsel took the time that he did, has led to a suit for accrued interest, which will bring still additional costs to the local taxpayers.

But the problems between Altman and the school committee are nothing new in Wilmington. One can trace them back to a past legal battle between the town accountant and the school department about three years back, when Attorney John Canavan had to be retained for legal services by the committee. This retainer has been questioned by School Committeemember Shirley Callan, as it distracts financially from the school system. And the latest incident is that Town Counsel Altman said he expects to be paid additional monies for special need cases.

All of the above can be summarized as a need to clarify the role of the town counsel so as to better serve the town boards and the taxpayers. Through account number 155 town counsel is paid $41,500 annually, as voted at town meeting in April. Many would feel that this is sufficient for the counsel to provide legal advice, to the best of his ability and expertise, to every standing committee in the local government. The school committee is to be complimented for taking a firm stand on the issue of town counsel's responsibilities to their board. Though the town charter may not specify his duties, it is only logical that he provide legal services to all bonified committees.

The Humble Farmer

The Artist

One of the first things my cousin Pam did when she came up from the city was to wash two years of soot and wood smoke off my curtains. They had just started to stream out in the wind when Gramp Wiley rushed over from his trailer next door and shouted in a very excited voice: "Quick! Get them old fashioned curtains off the clothes-line."

"What are you talking about?" she asked politely.

"I ain't seen Andy Wyeth go down by yet this morning."

Before the words were out of Gramp's mouth, I was yanking the curtains off the line and rolling them into a wet ball under my arm.

Pam looked at us if we were crazy.

"If you lived around here you'd understand," I said sheepishly. "Tell her about it, Gramp."

"For years everyone with a house on the road between Thomaston and Port Clyde has lived in fear" he said with a shiver. "I suppose you noticed that our homes are all freshly painted and kept up down here."

"It's a very pretty village," Pam agreed.

"Andy Wyeth's doing," said Gramp as he looked at the road nervously. "Every morning he loads a couple of his dogs into his Jeep and drives right by here on his way to his family's old studio where he works."

If anyone along here let a house get weatherbeaten, Andy'd be right out in their front yard drawing in on a sketch pad."

"Suppose you accidentally kicked out a pane of glass in your front window," I added, "and stuffed a rag in the hole. Andy'd have it in a painting within two days. A week later you'd see a photograph of it in 'Time' magazine."

"Why that would be great," said Pam brightly. "You'd be famous."

"We're tired of being famous," Gramp snorted. "Think what that means. Every two weeks for the rest of your life there'd be a reporter around from some slick magazine wanting to do a story on you and your quaint old house. And when you replaced a glass in your window, every arty photographer in the free world would get mad."

"Half of your neighbors would be jealous," I added, "and the other half would be asking you to get Andy's autograph. You'd never get a moment's rest. No matter what you did, everyone in town would have their own reason to hate you."

"And that's not all," said Gramp. "Every time Andy paints something, a tourist steals it for a souvenir. After he did the lightning rods on Hen Teel's roof, a dowager from Connecticut climbed up there and walked off with them."

"I've seen a banker from New York get out of a Rolls Royce right in broad daylight and tear the clapboards off Ralph Cline's house."

Pam looked around my back yard and nodded. "I wondered why it looks so good out front of your house and so messy out back."

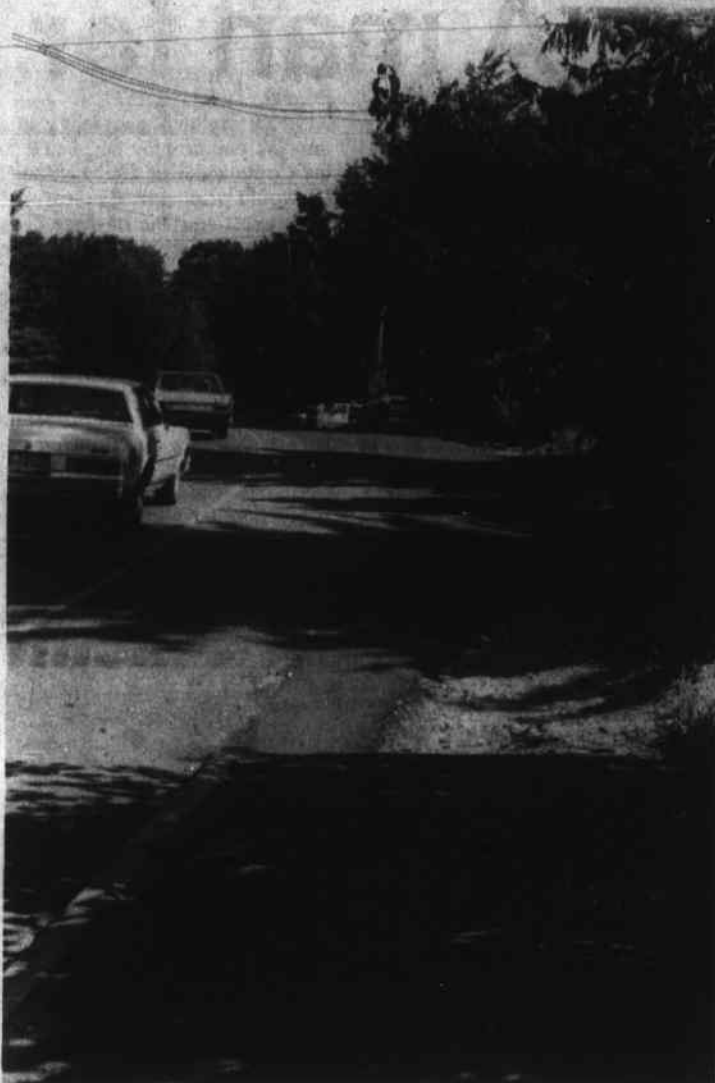

"Right," I said. "As long as everything looks OK when he drives by, we're safe. But he would have seen those fancy old curtains blowing in the wind, and only a hound dog chained to a tree would fetch him in here any quicker."

"And if he ever sees all the old wagon wheels out back, we'd never get rid of him," said Gramp with a shudder. "Sooner or later he'd ask for a drink of water or something, just to get a look at the inside of the old house."

"Before you'd know it, there'd be hundreds of tourists throwing beer cans and paper plates on my yard," he continued. "They'd be lined up to see my old pantry where Andrew Wyeth painted 'Hermie's Despair'."

Gramp Wiley herded us out of view of the road before he felt safe to say: "I'll take them curtains home and throw them in the dryer. If he done one sketch of this place there'd be so many people crawling through these lilac bushes we'd have to start pulling our shades when we got ready for bed."

The walk stops here Construction of a traffic signal on Federal Hill has wiped out a section of sidewalk, and added a right-turn lane.

letters to the editor

Dear Larz:

Concerning the construction site at the intersection of Rt. 62 and Federal Street where working traffic lights are to be installed. It seems to me that the extra lane added (in front of 263 Middlesex Ave.) was unnecessary and ultra dangerous for pedestrians.

Specifically children, on bikes or otherwise.

The way the lane was laid out the traffic will be headed dangerously close to the sidewalk.

The driveways connected with the construction are all too steep creating another danger (especially when ice forms during the winter months).

I have spoken personally to all persons involved in this construction, from the highest level down, before the construction even began, to no avail.

Nobody cares? I say lights ok, but the extra lane is not necessary and it is not too late to change the plans before school starts.

I wrote this note to make people aware of the danger involved when using this sidewalk and let it be known that I am vigorously opposed to the adding of this right lane.

William Cane

Dear Larz:

Regarding the closing of Olin Chemical Co. It should be strongly recommended that the necessary boards in town do everything in their power to oversee the closing of Olin Chemical. The need for an environmental consultant (one trained in epidemiology) is very necessary to insure that the land and surrounding areas are left in a condition that would not be detrimental to the area.

What is the status of the land surrounding the Olin plant? Has ground water studies been started to insure the residents that no contamination has reached our water? Wilmington people WAKE UP and smell the air. All this talk about preserving the land in Wilmington and our most precious resource (our water) may be endangered. I urge that water studies be conducted around the plant and for the people of Wilmington who have a concern for this town to put pressure on our town officials and them on our state officials to get the job done.

Concerned Resident

25 years ago

The August 31, 1961 edition of the Town Crier of Wilmington noted that:

School was scheduled to open September 6 with 28 new teachers, 17 for replacement and 11 for growth.

John Robbins of Grove Avenue, Terry Bowen of Main Street and Willie Lynch of Cottage Street were top swimmers at Silver Lake following last Sunday's Lifeguard Meet at Town Beach.

First National was offering Wilson's canned ham, six pounds for $4.89; turkeys for 35 cents a pound and apples at four pounds for 39 cents.

Jackie Bowen won the New England diving championship at L. Street in South Boston on August 13.

The Board of Directors of the Malden Chapter of Indoor Sports Club, an organization for the physically handicapped, met at the home of Anna Mercier on Swain Road.

Tree Warden Bill Babine reported that more than 40 maple trees in Wilmington were affected with a killing disease. He was asking the help of the state to combat the maple tree blight.

A few Wilmington telephone numbers were to drop the Oliver exchange - and become straight 658 - as part of the plan to do away with Oliver completely.

A house with three bedrooms, modern facilities, and with the owner saying "children accepted" was offered for rent at $150.00 per month.

When Mrs. Dorothy Nardone had trouble in Weinberg's Department Store parking lot she called her husband. He started the vehicle and she drove it through a large window right into Mike's store.

The provisional League of Women Voters of Wilmington would send delegates to the conference at Tufts University Sept. 6-7. Included would be Mrs. Philip Andrews, Mrs. Alanson Platt, Mrs. George Webster, Mrs. Peter Stratos, Mrs. Richard Sanders, Mrs. Stanley Byrn and Mrs. Henry Sullivan.

Donald Devlin, aviation electronics technician second class, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Devlin of Garden Avenue sailed Saturday aboard the attack aircraft carrier USS Ranger for a cruise of the Western Pacific.

Wilmington to apply for study of center

by Arlene Surprenant

A Feasibility Study Application Form will be submitted to EOCD by the town on behalf of the Wilmington Redevelopment Authority (WRA), according to an unanimous vote of Wilmington selectmen Monday night. The study would help analyze commercial, parking, housing, and transportation needs in town center as well as traffic flow and other aspects connected with the Rt. 129 Project and relocation of town center.

The cost of the study is $30,000. The redevelopment authority will pay $5,000 toward that cost. They expect to obtain the remaining $25,000 from EOCD.

Appearing before the board of selectmen is the "final step" in the process to apply for the $25,000, said WRA Chairman Jay Donovan. All that remains is for the chairman of the planning board to sign off on the form to show the project doesn't "detrimentally" affect zoning in that area, he added. If granted by EOCD, the money could be in the hands of the WRA within a month, an optimistic Donovan explained.

Selectman Jim Stewart praised Donovan for "a very well done grant application."

Donovan next told selectmen he had received a letter from DPW Commissioner Robert Tierney in answer to two letters he had sent requesting information and cooperative efforts between both the DPW and his board in relation to the project.

In the letter, Tierney explained the proposed road improvements "present the town with myriads of opportunities to create a commercial center, but this department is only empowered to participate in the highway phase of the project."

Donovan told the Town Crier he considers the letter to be "very bureaucratic." He went on to say "I'm very disappointed in it because it doesn't address the concerns he raised in our last letter."

Also, he added, the WRA board had been encouraged to submit comments and questions prior to the public hearing. However, in his letter, Tierney suggests the WRA re-submit its comments at the 25 percent design phase hearing, which may be delayed yet again.

"Piecemeal assessment of schemes or comments, however valid they may be, and counterproductive and should be evaluated as an integral part of the total when everyone has had a chance to be heard," was Tierney's statement.

Bottleneck at Wilmington Plaza ires selectmen

by Arlene Surprenant

Selectmen sought the help of local legislators Monday to force Mike Demoulas, owner of Demoulas Market Basket, to address traffic congestion by Wilmington Plaza.

This isn't the first time Chairman Rocco DePasquale has brought up the traffic problem at board meetings. It has been a recurring theme in the past. At Monday's meeting, he called Demoulas "uncooperative" and told Rep. Geoffrey Beckwith, Rep. James Miceli, and Sen. Robert Buell that Demoulas has repeatedly refused to meet with selectmen on the issue.

According to DePasquale, the congestion can be traced to some "dramatic changes" made in the plaza and "unbelievable" bottlenecks at the plaza entrances. Hiring a traffic officer, he added, has not relieved the problem.

Selectmen asked the legislators to use their influence to change the curb cuts and take a count of traffic along Route 38. They suggested the creation of a third entrance in the middle of the parking lot and forcing traffic to enter on one end of the lot and exit on the other.

Miceli wasn't sure what authority the state would wield in relation to the curb cuts. All promised to see what they could do.

Town Crier staffers hold three weddings

The ringing of wedding bells grew deafening at the Town Crier office over the weekend. Three staff members at the newspaper tied the knot in the past week, which accounts for one quarter of the paper's total staff of 12 employees.

On Saturday afternoon, ad sales wizard John O'Neil slipped the ring onto the hand of the former Carol Caldwell of Andover. The nuptials were held in Booth Bay, Maine, at the home of Thomas Tavenner, a mutual friend. Halfway through the ceremony, Tom's golden retriever strolled into the service, which is a good, if ancient, omen of fidelity.

Tewksbury reporter Bill Conlon tied the knot on Sunday afternoon when he wedded the former Mary Ann Woodman of Dracut. The ceremony was held in her front yard, squeezed in between the afternoon's rain showers. A vivid triple rainbow stretched overhead shortly after the service, and rainbows are one of the bride's favorite omens of good news.

Barbara Brogan, part of the Town Crier's circulation crew, married Gunnar Ek of Woburn on Monday night. Barbara, age 71, and Gunnar were sweethearts fifty-two years ago. They met again at a church social, that's a good amen.

Wilmington Planning Board Developer called in to explain road delay

by Arlene Surprenant
Why weren't roads in the Middlesex Pines development completed? Disgruntled homeowners will have to wait until the Wilmington Planning Board's public hearing September 9 to learn the answer from developer Patrick Cone of Elm Square Builders.

Town Engineer Robert Higgins told selectmen at a crowded meeting Monday night that the answer "should come from the developer" at the hearing. The hearing is being held to determine if the planning board should rescind the subdivision and take the $70,000 cash being held and have another contractor complete the work.

Neighborhood spokesman, Douglas Souza, offered a reason for the year and a half delay from the planning board's completion date. According to a letter received from Cone's attorney, Cone felt the town was holding the $70,000 illegally since Higgins refused to release $15,000 from that bond as promised. Higgins said he made no such promise. No other explanations were forthcoming.

Both Higgins and Town Counsel Alan Altman were present at the meeting to answer 13 questions posed by the "frustrated" homeowners who felt they hadn't been "properly represented" by the town in the matter.

Higgins was asked why the build-der wasn't contacted. He answered he had had ongoing meetings with the developer about the unfinished work, which includes pavement repair, roadway paving, and installation of trees and street lights, and he had discussed the subject frequently with the planning board and other town officials.

"The developer didn't give me any indication he wouldn't finish... I really had no clue he was going to walk away from the job," Higgins contended. However, according to Higgins, there is a one year requirement to complete roads in a subdivision. According to that requirement, added Higgins, they should have been finished by October, 1985, a deadline Higgins viewed as "reasonable."

Higgins further explained he had a verbal understanding with Cone. He told selectmen Cone would be willing to release the $70,000 to a sub-contractor to finish the roads under the town's authority. Both chairman Rocco DePasquale and Jim Stewart were dubious. They did not want to release any money until the job was done.

When asked why the bond was set so low, Higgins said the original $80,000 ($10,000 had been released for work on Palmer Way) was a "standard figure." He told selectmen the town could finish the work for $70,000 but "I don't think it's going to be easy." If the planning board decided to take the money and the amount was insufficient, the town could follow several options, one of which would be to place liens on other lots being developed by Cone, added Altman.

Altman told the neighbors "I share your frustration." He outlined how subdivisions are governed by certain statutes and urged homeowners to follow due process.

Altman assured those present it will be his recommendation that, unless some action is taken "in good faith," the planning board take the security and finish the subdivision. Neighbors seemed disappointed when he pointed out this route could mean waiting until next spring before construction gets underway.

"There's just no way around it, if that approach is taken," Altman said by way of explanation.

As a result of Monday's meeting, selectmen hope to follow several courses of action. They expect to look more closely at the town's bonding process and perhaps set a higher bond figure to give builders more incentive to finish developments. On Stewart's recommendation, who felt it was "inexcusable" of Cone to walk away from the project, they may try to meet with the developer. And they will make a periodic check of the town engineer's workload and require weekly reports from Higgins to hold him more accountable.

Wilmington man enters Navy

Michael Wood of 39 Butters Row, Wilmington is now a candidate for the US Naval Academy. Wood has been sworn into the US Navy for that purpose. The enlistment was unique in that it was for the purpose of allowing Michael to attend the US Naval Academy Prep School (NAPS) at Newport, Rhode Island.

It was also unique in that the oath was administered by his father, Chief Warrant Officer Richard Wood, USN (Ret.). Wood is a US Navy retiree, with over 22 years in the submarine service, and is currently a CWO in the US Navy Fleet Reserve. CWO Wood is the son of a Submarine Service veteran whose career dated back to 1911. That makes Michael a third generation Navy man.

Michael Wood was sworn in at the site of the former Fargo Building in South Boston. After one year of successful completion at NAPS he will enter the US Naval Academy at Annapolis, Maryland, as a Midshipman.

Wood, the son of Priscilla and Richard Wood, was an honor graduate of Arlington Catholic High School this spring. Rep. Jim Miceli and US Representative Markey joined in the effort to get an appointment to the US Naval Academy, and a subsequent appointment to NAPS, at Newport.

It's YOUR Money

by Joyce Brisbois
Certified Public Accountant

DO YOU NEED A CENTRAL ASSET ACCOUNT?

Investors these days are learning to make the most of their money. Some is in stocks and bonds, some is mutual funds or money-market accounts. Even the cash that comes in, in the form of dividends and interest, is put to work. All of which makes for a lot of paperwork.

That's why a number of people have chosen to put all their "eggs" in one basket: a central asset account. Under this arrangement, all holdings are managed in one place. Earned dividends and the proceeds of any securities sales are deposited automatically into a money-market account; a checking account or debit card is available to spend the money. Lower-interest borrowing against securities, and the use of a credit card are usually part of this package. Best of all, personal accounting is simplified with a single statement of all holdings.

Drawbacks? Full-service central asset accounts may carry hefty fees and brokerage fees may be slightly higher than you can get elsewhere.

Land ownership questioned

by Bill Conlon

The Town of Tewksbury may own a 1.2 acre plot of land without knowing it.

At this week's meeting of the planning board, a west Tewksbury resident had questions about the ownership of two plots of land and said he could find no answers.

Wendell Smith, who resides at an address that is technically on a "paper street" in town, came before the board to ask about two plots of land located beside Park Avenue, near the Billerica line, and part of a paper street which he claims to own.

Paper streets are those which appear only on maps. Town Counsel Charles Zaroulis went before the Planning Board on Monday to discuss how these paper streets could be removed, at the request of the board. No action was taken on the paper streets question.

Smith displayed a map which he said described two plots of land as belonging to the Town of Tewksbury. However, he said, when he researched the properties through the assessor's office, he could find no record of either the town's deed or that taxes had ever been collected on the land.

But Smith's main question for the planning board concerned a 6,800 square foot parcel of land which he said he bought last year from the Corenco company, a subsidiary of Baker Commodities. Smith said the land was part of a "paper street" which Corenco owned, and he displayed a quit claim deed to the plot which he said Corenco provided for the sum of one dollar. He said the planning board agreed to the deed at a meeting last year.

Smith's problem with the land came about when he went to improve it recently. He said he has been using the undeveloped land as part of his lawn for some time now.

The land gives him access onto Park Avenue, he said.

Smith said that when he dumped two truckloads of dirt recently to raise the level of the land, neighbors complained to the police. He said the police told him he could not use the land because it was part of a "paper street."

The original deed to the land states that Corenco owned all of the "streets and ways," including the paper streets and "parks." According to Smith, Corenco had the legal right to sell him the plot.

The status of Smith's right to use the "paper street" land remains uncertain.

But there are two plots of land nearby, adjoining the paper street, which Smith's map states as belonging to the town. He said the land may belong to Corenco as part of a deed dating to 1891. One of the plots is over an acre in size and is fronted by a paved road. However, the map lists the land as belonging to the Town of Tewksbury. The town may indeed own the parcel.

The men of Company I

The Second Massachusetts Infantry, Volunteers

©Copyright 1986 by
Capt. Larz Neilson

Just over 125 years ago the soldiers of Company I, Second Massachusetts Infantry began to make a sort of potshot acquaintance with Confederate soldiers, across the Potomac River in Virginia.

The Second Infantry was one of several regiments under the command of General Robert Patterson in Maryland. The Confederates, in and near Harpers Ferry in Virginia were under the command of an officer who was known as Stonewall Jackson—Brigadier General T.J. Jackson.

No matter which side a soldier was on, to have General Jackson in the neighborhood always made things interesting.

The Second Regiment was the first volunteer organization to leave Massachusetts. It became one of the outstanding regiments in the Northern Army, in the Civil War. It was not officered by volunteer politicians. The Colonel was a West Pointer, George H. Gordon. Sixteen of the officers were men from Harvard. Thirteen would lose their lives during the four years that the Second was in the war.

For some reason the Second trained at Brook Farm in West Roxbury. It was the only regiment to train there. Brook Farm was a place for social experiments by the intellectuals of that day.

It is quite possible that the reason there were 16 Harvard men in the officer ranks of the regiment was because they were at Brook Farm when the regiment was being formed.

In most regiments some prominent person would recruit a company of 100 men, and then be elected to be the captain by those men. In the second regiment, Colonel Gordon appointed most of the company officers and the men were then assigned to the various companies.

From the very beginning it was a regiment in which the officers and men meant business.

Culp's Hill

A drawing made from the Confederate side, showing the Yankees on top of Culp's Hill. It represents the Confederate skirmishers at work, as the second day of battle drew to a close.

On top, the viewer may see the U.S. flags of the Second Massachusetts and Twenty Ninth Pennsylvania. Each regiment had probably about 500 men present for duty at that time.

Recruiting of the enlistees went on from the 25th of April when a recruiting office was temporarily opened on State Street in Boston.

In Woburn, 49 men began to form a company. Many of them were mechanics and leather workers. Some were farmers. One was James Hale of Wilmington. He was 33, a little older than the men who were forming a company in Wilmington. For some reason these men did not become a part of the Second Regiment.

A dozen young men in Wilmington were also talking about enlisting. They were farmer boys, mostly, men who were about 20 years old.

The second regiment began to accept volunteers, and the Wilmington men were accepted. On the 25th of May they were enlisted into the regiment.

From all over the state groups of men were being accepted. There were many men from Lowell and a couple of dozen from Ipswich. Seventy-five men, all young, came from Salem. Others arrived from Fitchburg, and other towns.

The Wilmington town hall records and the state records as to who was who, in that regiment, do not agree.

The Town of Wilmington lists a dozen men as being in Company G, Second Regiment. The state records show that 10 men were in Company I, Second Regiment, on the 25th of May.

John E. Eames, of Woburn Street, for instance, is recorded as being a corporal in Company G, in the town records. In the state records his name does not appear. Those state records are quite accurate, too.

He was a brother of Mary Ann Eames, the girl who married Jimmy Hale.

Joining the regiment on May 25th were George B. Bailey, Thomas A. Bancroft, Theodore S. Butters, James T. Emonds (of Billerica), Simeon Jaquith (of Woburn), John E. James, Charles A. Nichols, (maybe of Lawrence), Hiram Pearson (of Tewksbury), Henry E. Stickney, Elbridge G. Taylor and John H. White. All show a home in Wilmington.

Abner Bailey, father of George, lived on Chestnut Street where the Herrin family lives today, close to Butters Row. Abner was 23 when he enlisted, and was a shoemaker.

Bailey was taken prisoner in August, 1862, near Manassas Junction. He returned to duty October 26. He was killed in action in Gettysburg on July 3, 1863.

Thomas and Hepsibah Bailey lived at what is now 104 West Street. Thomas Bailey was not their only son to serve in the Union Army. In the Second Regiment he was detailed to the commissary and served there until he was mustered out, May 28, 1864.

He was married to Mary E. Orcutt of Tewksbury before the war.

Theodore S. Butters was born on Butters Row, son of Lorenzo Butters. The home was very near the old Middlesex Canal, and near the South School. Both the school and the Butters home were on the north side of Butters Row.

Lorenzo had a literary reputation, and was able to quote extensively from the poetry of the day. He was on the committee which oversaw the teaching in the South School. Each school had such a committee at that time.

Judging from the records "Ted" was a capable soldier. He was made a corporal in March 1863.

Ted was wounded the third day at Gettysburg, on Culp's Hill. A bullet passed through his leg, destroying the bone. The leg was cut off by surgeons.

Cleanliness was not an attribute of the Civil War surgeons. Ted died of infection on July 30.

Otis and Abbey Ann Carter lived at the railroad crossing on Glen Road. His father had been the constable of Wilmington at the time of the Pearson murders in 1849.

Their son James was born in Reading, and does not appear in the Wilmington records until after the war when he married Lizzie Orcutt of Wilmington. James was wounded in the Battle of Chancellorsville, in hand and cheek, on May 3, 1863. He returned to duty July 30. He was detached as an orderly at Brigade headquarters in September 1863 and was mustered out on May 28, 1864.

James T. Emonds is shown in the Wilmington records as being a Wilmington resident, but he lived in Billerica. He was 29, probably the oldest of the "Wilmington" men, and listed as a teamster, by occupation.

Emonds was wounded, at the Battle of Cedar Mountain, on August 9, 1862. He was wounded a second time at Gettysburg, on July 3, 1863 and died of wounds on July 20.

John E. James does not appear in the Wilmington records. Twenty years old, a baker, he was born in Hereford, England. It is quite possible he was employed at one of the Bond bakeries in Wilmington.

James was taken prisoner by the forces of Stonewall Jackson near Winchester, Virginia on the 25th of May 1862, and was returned to duty on October 23rd.

He was promoted to corporal Dec. 22, 1861, to sergeant on the 16th of February 1863 and first sergeant on the 14th of April 1863. James was mustered out while in Georgia on May 28, 1864.

Simeon Jaquith is listed as a corporal in the Wilmington records. He enlisted however, from Woburn. His father was Jonathan, of Wilmington. The Jaquith book shows he was born in Wilmington in October 1840.

Like the others he enlisted on the 25th of May 1861. Three months later he was discharged from the regiment, as a minor.

Simeon had to wait a while, and then enlisted in the Mass. Volunteer Light Artillery, and was mustered out on the 4th of August 1865 as a sergeant.

Charles A. Nichols, recorded as of Wilmington, has no Wilmington family record. That is not unusual, for Wilmington. Records had been kept very poorly for the past 40 years, when the Civil War started. The father was also Charles A. Nichols, and a man of that name was born in Wilmington in 1810.

He seems to have lived in Lawrence. That was his home in 1865 when he married Ella Jane Nichols of Wilmington.

Hiram Pearson is another man who appears in the Wilmington records. He was a carpenter, 28 years old, and lived in South Tewksbury.

Hiram was wounded in his head at Cedar Mountain on August 9, 1862 and again at Resaca, Georgia in the shoulder, on May 15, 1864. He died of wounds on June 11, 1864.

Henry Stickney was 21. He lived in Wilmington most of his life. He may have been born in Wilmington. His parents were Edward and Hannah, and he was a laborer, at the time of enlistment. Henry was discharged from the regiment on August 15, 1861.

The Elbridge Taylor family lived in a farmhouse which stood about where 2 Marion Street is today. They had lived in Wilmington for about 20 years when the war started. Elbridge G., the son, enlisted with his friends and was captured near Winchester, Virginia, on May 25, 1862. That was on one of the occasions when Stonewall Jackson chased Yankees all over the Valley. If it is possible, at a future date, this paper will review that particular day in the life of some Wilmington boys.

Elbridge was taken to Richmond, Virginia, where he remained as a prisoner of war until his death over two years later, in September 1864.

John H. White came from a musical family. The White home was in what is now Wilmington square. It stood where the telephone building is today. Inez White, his aunt, painted a lovely picture of the home, which has appeared in this paper.

He was the son of Silas Henry White and Maria Rhoda Harnden. Silas was a musician, and his brother Lorenzo played in a Boston orchestra which, according to tradition, is now the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Lorenzo was a clarinetist.

John, born in Framingham played the violin. He was very anxious to get in the Army. According to family tradition he lied about his age. The state records say he was a musician, in the Second Regiment. The Wilmington records call him a drummer.

John served out his three years, and was mustered out while the Regiment was a part of Sherman's Army, in Georgia. From there he went to Philadelphia to live with his Aunt Inez.

As a musician, in the Union Army, he would have been an ambulance attendant during battle. A tradition in the family is that he was wounded in the leg, during battle. This is not confirmed in the Massachusetts records. His sister was the lady who married Dr. Daniel Buzzell, from whence comes the Hamden tradition in the Buzzell family.

John never returned to Wilmington.

Bailey's home

The Herrin home on Chestnut Street was the boyhood home of George Bailey. The cedar tree, probably about 200 years old, was there when Bailey was a boy.

Wilmington water service problems resolved

Water services to private homes in Wilmington may now be allowed under certain circumstances in which there is no direct land connection from the home to the water main in the street. So the Wilmington water and sewer commissioners voted on August 21.

There must be a right-of-way approved by the Planning Board, and there cannot be more than two such services, each to individually connect to the water main in the street.

The commissioners wrestled with two water service problems on August 21. One involved two house lots facing on Route 62 in a real estate development between High Street and Route 62. The other involved a proposed houselot, off Silverhurst Avenue, in the Silver Lake area. A 10 foot right-of-way was being proposed.

Joseph Langone has the real estate between High Street and Route 62.

He has two lots in that development facing on Route 62. The planning board has stipulated that there must be no access or egress to Route 62, from those lots, for reasons of safety.

So the planning board allowed access to the road in the development by a 20 foot right-of-way over lot nine.

The plan had been signed and delivered to Langone. Two hammerhead lots had a right-of-way over the land of another owner. That right-of-way, by water department regulations, could not be used for water services to private homes.

The commissioners wrestled about half an hour over the two problems. It was Arthur Smith who came up with an answer.

He resolved the proposed houselot, off Silverhurst Avenue, by proposing that the commissioners would not consider it until the planning board had signed a plan.

On Route 62 lots, which are now "hammerhead lots" approved by the planning board, Smith observed that "We got ourselves boxed in the Planning Board." Then he proposed a change in the regulations, strict, but which would allow approval of a right-of-way approved by the planning board for no more than two individual house services. Each of those services must be attached, individually, to the street water main.

It was so voted, unanimously.

Wilmington men fought in little-known battle

Copyright © 1986 by
Capt. Larz Neilson

Ask the average citizen with high school or better for education about Culp's Hill the chances are that the question will draw a blank stare.

They probably know of Pickett's Charge, or of Little Round Top, at Gettysburg. They may have heard of the Peach Orchard, or the Wheat Field.

But Culp's Hill--No.

Located at the northern end of the Union line, Culp's Hill was the scene of intensive fighting on the second and third days of the Battle of Gettysburg. On the morning of the third day the hilltop was littered with bodies of Yankee and Confederate soldiers.

But the average person never heard of it. Pickett's Charge took place that same afternoon, and all that happened in the morning just became past history.

The Second Massachusetts and the 29th Pennsylvania defended Culp's Hill, for those two long days. They formed a brigade. They were attacked by a Confederate brigade commanded by a Baltimore resident, Maj. General George H. (Maryland) Stuart.

Of the dozen Wilmington soldiers in Company I one was killed, and two were mortally wounded. George Bailey was killed in action. Theodore S. Butters and James T. Emonds were wounded, and later died.

CORPORAL THEODORE S. BUTTERS
WILMINGTON, MASS.

Photography during the Civil War was a time consuming process. Persons being photographed had to be absolutely calm and still. Frequently, especially in photographic studios, there was a neck clamp and iron stand with it, to hold the head of the individual absolutely still while the picture was being taken.

Photographic studios in the southern states often had a Bowie knife or bayonet to be held by the Rebel soldiers while the photograph was being taken. In some northern studios the photographer supplied a bugle, for the same reason.

It will be noted that in this picture, taken from The Butters Book in the Wilmington Library, there are no chevrons on the arms of Ted Butters. That means the picture was taken before March 1863, at which time he was promoted to corporal.

The chances are that the photograph was taken in Boston. A second choice is Frederick, Maryland. The Second Massachusetts was camped out about four miles from that city for several months during the winter of 1861-62.

In Business

Supplier Insitute established

Wanted: Small manufacturers interested in increasing quality, reducing costs, and supplying leading U.S. corporations.

This is a call being sounded by Growth Opportunity Alliance of Grater Lawrence, G.O.A.L., a non-profit Corporation founded in 1978, has helped over 600 companies in the U.S. and overseas improve their quality, productivity, and competitive position. It has been cited in Business Week as "One of the most exciting productivity improvement efforts in the U.S."

G.O.A.L. has established a division, The Supplier Institute, in order to help local smaller manufacturers meet the ever increasing quality delivery and price demands of leading U.S. companies.

The Supplier Institute is geared toward businesses with 5 to 500 employees. The six-week "Quality Literacy Course" includes 40 hours of classroom instruction in such topics as Statistical Process Control, Total Quality Control, and Continuous Improvement Programs.

The course is followed by 20 hours of on-the-job training so that participants can learn to apply their newly acquired skills.

The Supplier Institute will start September 23, 1986 and will meet every Tuesday and Thursday ending on November 6.

The first 40 participants will be eligible for funding grants from the Bay State Skills Corporation - a quasi-public organization of the State of Massachusetts.

In operation since 1978, G.O.A.L. was started as a coalition of government labor, and management focussing on the economic recovery of Lawrence and the Merrimack Valley. Since 1980, the group has turned its attention to quality and productivity beginning with a series of lectures by quality dean W. Edwards Deming. Since then, G.O.A.L. has established "Deming User Groups" and offers a variety of training seminars on current developments in the quality sciences.

G.O.A.L. shares information with any company that wishes to be more competitive. For further information, contact: Lawrence LeFebre at 685-3900.

Proud Temp

Secretary of the Year is one of the greatest pleasures we have, said its president, Helen A. Moore, of Moore Employment Inc. This is the sixth annual award given since our operation began in 1980. This year we chose Ms. Cherie Quirici of Wilmington, a proud Moore Temp for three years. She has demonstrated to us and on the many assignments she has worked that her secretarial and word processing skills and overall work performance, (whatever the office function) are above and beyond expectation.

She is, without a doubt, extremely conscientious in her work and attendance at each and every assignment. Not only has Cherie proven her many talents but has shown tremendous growth during this period.

Attention, accounts payable

Fraudulent billing is a big business with possibly as much as $25 million being paid each year to firms sending statements, sort of, for goods or services, not authorized, not ordered and not wanted. These figures are estimates of the U.S. Postal Service.

In many instances, a bookkeeper, or other employee, pays a bill sent to a business even though he, or she, may not recognize the sender. This happens when the person is anxious to get the job done without having the boss ask why they haven't paid all the bills.

Some solicitations which come in by mail actually resemble invoices, or bills, with the sender hoping that the person who writes the checks to pay the bills does not do any checking. Postal laws prohibit the mailing of a solicitation which looks like an invoice. This document must state on the fact of it that it is a solicitation and not a bill, invoice or statement of an amount due the sender.

The U.S. Postal Service also suggests that businesses carefully select personnel for their mailrooms. Mail can be lost, or stolen, from mailrooms, or while enroute to the post office. If you use a postage meter machine you should keep it locked when not in use, check out-going mail periodically to determine if employees are using metered postage for personal mail.

Be on the safe side and double check all invoices, bills or statements to ascertain that the goods, or services, were authorized and received as per agreement. Official-looking addresses (county, city, state or federal) are not necessarily from agencies of government.

Makes donation

Shawmut County Bank of Wilmington recently donated $1000 to the Regional Health Center in Wilmington (RHCW). The donation was earmarked for Expansion '86, the Health Center's construction program which added 16,000 square feet of additional patient care space to the ambulatory care center on Salem Street.

At the check presentation ceremonies, Nicholas A. Balog, RHCW vice president and director, showed Shawmut representatives the new lower level, including the expanded physical therapy facilities. The Shawmut representatives are Leonard H. Brilliante, Wilmington branch banking officer; and Raymond C. Hoeffling, former Wilmington branch banking officer, who is now affiliated with the Winchester branch.

Accepts award

Dynamics Research Corporation (DRC) was recently honored for outstanding corporate support of the Mass Bay Chapter of the Association of the U.S. Army (AUSA), an organization which represents Army interests in the government and the public.

Accepting the plaque presented by Brigadier General Thomas Geagon, USA (Ret.), vice president of Corporate Coordination, Mass.

Bay Chapter, AUSA, were John S. Anderegg, Jr., chairman and president of DRC, and Albert Rand, senior vice president and general manager of DRC's Systems Division, during a recent ceremony at the company's Andover facility.

The Systems Division provides computer-based technical data management systems and analysis for major weapons systems.

Promoted

Eugene Secor has been named Facility Manager for the Wilmington, hot melt adhesive production facility of the Adhesives, Sealants and Coatings Division of H.B. Fuller Company.

In his new position, Secor will be responsible for production, manufacturing, research and development, quality assurance and sales of H.B. Fuller Company's line Terlan polyester and polyamide hot melt adhesives.

H.B. Fuller Company is a manufacturer of specialty chemicals, including adhesives, sealants, coatings, paints, specialty waxes, and sanitation chemicals. The company listed 1985 sales of $457.9 million, a figure which ranked the firm in position No. 489 of the Fortune 500 ranking of the leading industrial firms in the U.S.

The Wilmington Massachusetts facility became part of H.B. Fuller Company following H.B. Fuller's acquisition of assets of The Terrell Corporation on July 10, 1986.

Founded in St. Paul in 1887, H.B. Fuller Company now has 54 plants and technical service centers in 30 U.S. cities, and operation in 28 other countries around the world.

Previously, Secor was director of Technical services for the Foster Products Division of H.B. Fuller Company. Secor joined Foster Division in 1976, and has held positions in technical service, product development, sales, marketing, and as industry liaison specialist with the construction engineering community.

Secor holds an A.S. in Chemical Engineering Technology from Spring Garden College, a B.S. in Chemistry from Philadelphia College of Textiles and Science and an M.B.A. from Temple University, Philadelphia.

Shawsheen's computer camp

by Arlene Surprenant
It's not your average summer camp. Students at this camp do get a chance to swim and work out in the gym. But they also learn computer language, keyboard, and word processing skills, and are given a chance to have fun with such special games as Soccer, Chicago, Kick-ball, and Obstacles.

In this their fourth year, 190 youngsters took advantage of this summer's Computer Camp at the Shawsheen Tech.

The camp was run in two three week cycles beginning July 7 and ending August 15. Because the program is self-supporting, fourth through ninth graders from the five

"Our feeling is they have had 10 months of formal school and now we want to take all the stress off the youngsters," explains McDermott. To do this, the camp offers three different types of activities each presented as an enjoyable learning experience.

Besides regular sports activities and exercises in the Tech gym, time is set aside for Red Cross Swim, district towns paid a $135 tuition fee to participate.

According to the Tech's Area Coordinator John McDermott, who administered the program, the whole idea is "to combine learning with fun."

Computer students

Chipper Murray of Wilmington, along with Alex Falcone and Danny Metzler, zero in on a computer game at Shawsheen Tech. They were among the students who spent their summer learning about computers.

Lifesaving Techniques, Diving, and General Water Safety courses in the school indoor pool. At the end of camp, ribbons are awarded to those in beginner, intermediate, and advanced levels.

But the main reason most youngsters sign up is the computers.

"They are taught how to use the computer as a tool so that they control the computer rather than having it control them," says McDermott.

Before camp begins, youngsters are screened and placed in either beginner or advanced sections. And though there are enough terminals for each student in a session and "we individualize as much as possible," McDermott finds that many students would rather pair up on the school's IBM, Radio Shack, and Digital equipment and computers rather than work alone.

"One interesting thing to note is the change in attitude," McDermott continues. Though most of the participants are virtual strangers to each other at the beginning, toward the end of the three weeks the noise level increases along with confidence as the youngsters feel more comfortable with each other and their computers.

There's also a lot of motivation to do well and, if youngsters enjoy the unique experience, says McDermott, they often spread the word to their friends who join them the following year.

All of the instructors this year, with one exception, were Tech personnel. They include John Garino and James Byrnes (Computers), Jack Bowen and Anamae Coffin (Pool), and Edward Gillis and Peter Flynn (Gym). Also assisting were Tech seniors Christopher Gear and Tom Guttadauro (Computers) and Joyce Coach, secretary for the program.

Wilmington's
All-Stars

These Wilmington Youth Basketball youngsters earned praise and picked up some valuable basketball skills at the recent Bentley College All-Star Basketball Camp. See the story on this page.

Local hoopsters camp stars

Sixteen boys just completed one week of basketball fundamentals training to improve their basketball skills under head coach Frank Sullivan of Bentley College.

The boys attending the camp from Wilmington were in the Big East Conference and included Greg Cardello; Steven Greco; David Godin; Danny Godin; Dennis Godin; Brian Mullins; Brent Carbone; John McKinnon; David Oatis; Steven McGlinchey; Derek Stokes and Tommy Zaya.

In the NBA division were Ermenico Grasso; Joe

Cunningham; Andy Jamerson and Paul Gargan.

Danny Godin and Derek Stokes were voted to the Big East All-Star team by the coaches.

Head coach Frank Sullivan would like to thank all the parents who sent their boys to camp.

He has also invited the Wilmington group to send a youth girls and boys basketball team to play at halftime, Saturday, Nov. 29 when the Bentley plays Quinnipac College.

He would like to encourage any boy or girl from 10 through 18 to attend next year's camp.

Former Wildcat Nihan takes Reading helm

The Labor Day weekend signals the start of the college football season, with the high school and pro gridiron campaigns right around the corner.

This Saturday I'll be catching coach Ed Harrison's Wilmington Wildcats in their scrimmage opener at Kennett High School in Conway, New Hampshire.

While on the subject of the Wildcats, they are losing a talented young assistant coach in Gary Nihan, who has become the talented young head coach of the Reading High School Rockets.

The Merrimack Valley Conference has become one of the strongest high school football conferences in the state over the last five falls, and this season should be no different, with the defending Division II champion Tewksbury Redmen looming as the preseason favorite.

Billerica and Chelmsford are lurking strongly as darkhorses in the background however, while the Wildcats are always capable of making another run at the top spot.

My fearless MVC picks should be good for some food for football

Tewksbury track star

DeStefano finishes stellar career

Tewksbury's June DeStefano recently completed a stellar academic and athletic career at the University of Lowell. June, a graduate of Tewksbury High School, went on to become a four-year letter winner at the University of Lowell while maintaining a 3.58 academic average majoring in physical therapy.

June competed in the discus event for coach Jerry Rideout's ULowell squad, completing her senior (1986) season as an academic All-ECAC performer. She is the current ULowell record holder in her event with a throw of 128'9".

In 1985, June was the highest finisher in the New England from a Division II school.

Hole-in-one

A Wilmington golfer scored a hole-in-one on Sunday at the Trull Brook Golf Course in Tewksbury. Bill Hanlon, Jr., 24, of Sprucewood Road, North Wilmington made the shot on the 11th hole, a 160-yard, par three hole.

But Elway may soon take a backseat to Buffalo Bills' QB Jim Kelley, who comes over from the on-standby (or is that stinky?) USFL. Kelley is an impact player of the first order and should move the Bills up at least one notch in the Body Classic October 25

The fourth annual A.A.U. sanctioned Mr./Ms. Merrimack Valley Bodybuilding Classic will be held Saturday, October 25 at the Lowell High School auditorium. Pre-judging will begin at 3:30 p.m. The finals, which include freestyle posing and awards ceremony, will begin at 7:30 p.m.

The classic is pleased to announce that Marlon Darton of Tucson, Arizona will be the guest poser at this event.

Marion holds the titles of 1985 Mr. World (Tall Class) and Mr. America (Tall Class) and is currently training for the 1986 Mr. Universe and Mr. America.

He will be conducting a bodybuilding seminar, which will begin at 6 p.m. This will be open to anyone who may be interested in attending.

The competition will consist of three men's divisions: Mr., Teenage, and Masters over 35, and one women's division: Ms.

There will be three height classes in the Mr., two height classes in the Ms. and one in the Teen and Masters divisions.

Competitors must be A.A.U. members. If potential competitors are not A.A.U. members, a sanctioning fee of $10.00 must be enclosed with the entry fee of $8.00. Confirmation letters and directions will be sent to all contestants.

Tickets are on sale now for $6.50 or are available at the door for $7.50.

Last year's competition was a huge success, attracting 45 competitors and over 1000 spectators.

This year's competition promises to be even better. The Mr./Ms. Merrimack Valley Bodybuilding Classic is an excellent chance for area bodybuilders to experience the excitement of competing in a quality competition.

For further information, contact Craig Dadoly, 136 Forest Park Rd., Dracut, Ma. 01826 or call (617) 957-1544.

The outdoors column

by Bill Conlon

It was a nice day for a deep-sea fishing trip, if ever there was one.

Now, I don't want anyone to think for a moment that I'm giving up on sweet-water fishing. Far from it. But last week I made my annual pilgrimage to the ocean to try my luck at the monsters of the brine. The day turned out well. Sort of.

It had rained the night before the trip, and I went to bed with horrible visions of casting my breakfast upon the sea while being tossed by 20-foot swells.

Our charter was on a Hilton boat out of Newburyport, but they somehow forgot about us. With an hour to spare while they got a boat ready, I dashed off in a desperate search for camera film. There was no camera film to be had in all of Newburyport. Some tourist town. Strike one.

At last the "Brenda" was ready to pull out, and away we went. The only scary part was at the mouth of the Merrimack, where the waves stood at about eight feet. Our 35-foot boat was tossed like a pond canoe in the wake of a ski boat but we passed that obstacle and headed for Jeffery's Bank off the Isle of Shoals.

The ride was gorgeous. The sea was running with swells of about two feet. Breakfast stayed put. Piece-a-cake.

Then came the fishing itself. The cap'n anchored us in about 120 feet of water and away went the lines. We were fishing for cod and pollack, using clams for bait, but it wasn't meant to be. (And I still haven't figured out where they get clams that big.)

The first indication we had that something was wrong came when the first fish came into the boat. It was a small cod, but it didn't look healthy. Everything was missing from the gills down, bitten away. Strike two.

Sand sharks, also called spiny dogfish, were to plague us all day. In seconds we were hauling the little gray-and-white monsters into the boat, hand over fist. Everyone caught at least one.

Dogfish have teeth, which are more like bony ridges, and sharp spines in front of their dorsal fins. I learned the hard way just how sharp the spines are.

I hauled in one two-foot shark and flopped it onto the deck, quickly drawing my knife to do in the little bugger. However, the thrashing shark managed to stab the cap'n's new rubber bouy with a spine before I could nail the brute. The bouy made a sad sort of hissing noise which I knew didn't come from the shark. The mate gave me a grim-eyed look before replacing the bouy.

Five stops were made during the day and the little sharks were under the boat every time. All told we managed to get about a dozen cod and a few cusk into the boat before calling it a day. The mate told us on the way back that the fishing has been poor everywhere lately.

As for strike three, I got a nasty sunburn around my waistband from sitting on the rail all day. It still hurts. Ouch.

-Tackle Box-

The Tewksbury Rod & Gun club is holding a hunter safety clinic at the club's Chandler Street quarters beginning September 4 and running for six weeks. The cost is free and the course will last from 7 to 9 p.m. Graduates over the age of 15 will receive a certificate of competency, which is required to hunt alone in the Commonwealth. Registration will be held the first night.

The Ipswich River Watershed Association will hold its annual clambake at Farnsworth's in Middleton, Mass., on September 14 at 1 p.m. Reservations must be made in advance and the cost is $13 for grown-ups, which includes a lobster. Outdoor activities are planned, if the weather cooperates.

An unusual fish has appeared in Massachusetts lately, according to the Division of F & W.

Two bowfin (amia calva) were caught on the Merrimack River since May, and the state agency says they aren't common at all. Bowfin run to about three pounds, with sharp teeth and the ability to breathe air! They can be identified by a long ribbon-like fin along the length of its back, a massive head with tiny eyes and an oval tail with a large spot, possibly orange rimmed.

Anybody catching one is asked to call the Division of Fisheries and Wildlife at 1-800-632-8075.

Newport Boat Show

The 16th annual Newport International Sailboat Show (NISS), the nation's premier in the water sail show - will feature over 450 sailboats, many new designs, and numerous special event activities. The four day show will be held September 4-7 at the Newport Yachting center, Newport, Rhode Island.

NISS provides attractions for everyone, whether it be the novice yachtsman or veteran boater. Of the over 450 new crafts, 50 will feature new designs and many show boats will be displayed in water, as well as on land. The vast selection of boats on display range from 18" radio controlled models to the Queen of the Show, the 70' "New Horizons." Highlights not to be missed include:

"Shamrock" makes a special appearance. This magnificent 127' wooden sailboat will be on hand to lend elegance to the entire show. Recently donated by Lipton Tea to the Museum of Yachting at Fort Adams, "Shamrock" will be the host of a special media reception to be held Thursday, September 4 at 11 a.m. A raffle to win a trip for 20 aboard "Shamrock" will be a special museum fundraiser.

The Mini-American Cup Amateur Challenge (Open daily to public; special media challenge slated Saturday, September 6 at 1 p.m.)

Sponsored by Sony, the Mini-America's Cup Amateur Challenge sets remote controlled model sailboats in a demonstration bin. "Skippers" compete to maneuver the vessels across the basin via the remote controlled sails. An exciting media challenge is scheduled for Saturday, September 6 for New England personalities to compete against the actual international champions. The semi-finals for the Mini-America's Cup is being held concurrently with NISS at Fort Adams.

In-water demonstrations. Many boats will hold in-water demonstrations including J-Boats and a wide array of other show boats. NISS provides the serious sailboat shopper with the opportunity to personally test many of the boats in the show. It is also the first national showing of the majority of boats.

Exhibitors of every aspect of sailing. NISS provides attendees the unique opportunity to have everything on-site, which may be needed to purchase a sailboat. This includes the availability of experts on sails, rigging, chartering, sailing schools, financing and insurance. Exhibits of paint, electronics and appropriate boating clothing round out the many offerings.

Every year experienced and novice sailors from around the world benefit from the expertise of NISS will be open from noon to 6 p.m. Thursday; 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Friday and Saturday, and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 4-7. Admission is $7.00 adults, and $4.00 children. Watch for $1.00 off coupon display at major marinas, brokers, and chandlers across the country.

For more information, contact show manager Jean Welker at 401/846-1600.

Send the Town Crier back to college this fall.

College students need lots of things. Your new freshman needs books, calculators, clothes and all those things you have at home that make life bearable. Seniors have all those things but will buy new ones anyway.

The one thing they don't have is home town news.

You can clip all those articles about their friends, events in town, scores of their old high school team and mail them each week - or

Send them the Town Crier each week with their own subscription.

Eastern Division of the AFC. If the Patriots' receivers had Golden Boy Jim throwing bombs their way they could run deep all the way to the bank. Guaranteed.

Tony Eason is a good quarterback who hands the ball off to Craig James and finds his receivers with short passes to either sideline, but he will never be the superstar quarterback that can swing a game in his team's direction when all those around him are having a lousy day.

And to close out the subject of quarterbacks, is anyone out there as tired of the Doug Flutie watch as I am? The Rams will probably eventually sign the former Boston College miracle man, but do they really want a quarterback who is shorter than Pat Haden, their starter several seasons back.

Recreation trips

Up and coming trips

The following is a list of the Wilmington Recreation Department's up and coming trips for the fall and early winter.

Call the Recreation Department for further information Monday through Friday between 8:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m.

1. September 20, Newport, Rhode Island cruise and a three hour narrated tour of Newport and its famous mansions.

This year the group will visit the Marble Mansion. The trip will be returning to Wilmington about 7 p.m.

2. September 21, cruise on Winnepesaukee for three hours and then visit Mill Falls Market place in Meredith for some fun shopping.

From there we will go to the famous Annalee's Doll Museum and gift store. The trip will be returning to Wilmington at about 6:30 p.m.

3. October 11. The Maine Outlet Stores at the Maine Mall has 27 outlet shops, among them Timberland and Talbott's, across the highway from the Kittery Trading Post with 12 factory outlets selling brand name products such as Waterford Crystal, Royal Doulton China and Totes.

From there, we will go to Portsmouth's historic Strawberry Bank for some more fun shopping. This trip will be returning to Wilmington at about 5:30 p.m.

4. For the New York lovers, Saturday, December 6 will be our day trip for Christmas shopping and to see the lights. The trip will return to Wilmington at about 1:30 a.m.

Town Beach closes

Residents of Wilmington are reminded that lifeguard supervision ends this Saturday at 7 p.m. at the Town Beach.

The Recreation Department thanks those who have made the programs at the public beach so successful over this past summer.

"Dice" is back

"Dice" O'Neil (left) attended his first meeting of the Wilmington Water Commissioners last week, following an illness. O'Neil served as clerk of the Water Department before his retirement. After retiring, he was named to the board. Commissioner Arthur Smith is at right.

Dice O'Neil back at work

Dice (Maurice) O'Neil has returned to duty.

The veteran water commissioner of Wilmington has been unable to attend water department meetings for several months due to illness. The illness caused, among other things, a lengthy visit to the hospital.

He was greeted with applause, and a few remarks, when he showed up for the August 21st meeting of the commissioners. The remarks, friendly, came from Arthur Smith.

"O'Neil's answer to Smith: 'You're uglier than I am. Just don't get as old as I am!'"

Wilmington senior topics

Openings available

We have a few more openings on the October 6 Edaville Railroad social. After they are filled we will start the waiting list. As we had to book this social in advance we will expect to have cancellations.

Painting and dancing

It is very important to call the Center at 657-7595 if you will be joining the painting or dance classes. The instructors want to know how many seniors will be in the classes. The donation paid by the seniors will be set on the number in the class. The painting class will be two hours of teaching and the dancing class will be one hour of teaching and one hour of free dancing for those in the class.

All of our programs are implemented for the mental and physical well being of our seniors. Dancing is an excellent way to keep muscles and joints healthy. Painting is a good activity in keeping minds alert.

Exercise class resumes Sept 8

The exercise teacher will be on vacation starting August 25. Classes will resume September 8.

Hot lunch program

The hot lunch program will resume September 8. Remember to have a meal delivered or to be served at the meal site it is necessary to call the Center to make a reservation. Please do not go to the school unless the call is made to Louise, who orders all the meals which are delivered and served that day. When lunches resume they will return to the 12:30 p.m. serving.

Labor Day

Monday, Sept. 1 is Labor Day. Please make appointments accordingly. The minibus will not be on the road. We have a new minibus driver. She has been advised the most important part of her job is transporting the seniors safely. The drivers do an excellent job transporting the large number of seniors every day, especially through the crowded streets of Wilmington. We are seeing an increase on doctor and hospital trips, people coming to the Center and other appointments. If you are calling for transportation to any of the above you should not have a car sitting in the drive way when the minibus arrives.

The minibus is for seniors who are living alone and have no transportation available to them. We will drop seniors who live alone with no transportation off to shop, that is, when the driver is not tied up on another trip. It must be remembered the minibus is free to those who use it, but it is not a taxi.

COA meets Sept. 8

The Council on Aging meeting will not be held on Monday, September 1 due to the holiday. It will be September 8, in the Senior Center starting at 1:30 p.m.

Wilmington police news

During the week ending August 26, Wilmington Police officers responded to six accidents, 21 alarms, nine disturbances, five domestic problems, made five arrests and five protective custody detentions.

Four larcenies were reported along with four incidents of suspicious activity and one break and entry.

Medical assistance was given on one occasion, four threat complaints were logged and four assault and batteries were investigated.

A stolen vehicle was recovered, one trespassing complaint was taken along with two complaints involving traffic and six involving trailbikes.

Larceny during the week included radios, baseball equipment, bikes, a gas grill and building materials.

Arrests

Early Friday morning officers Miller and Fiore went to the MDC Lower Basin station to arrest Michael Smith of Lenox Street, Boston by virtue of a default warrant issued by Wilmington. He was held overnight for court in Woburn.

Tuesday afternoon after a citizen report of a car all over the road on Main Street, officer Jim Cuoco and Sgt. Rooney arrested Gordon Gaudreau, 39, who gave addresses in Nashua, N.H. and Dobson Street, Wilmington. He was charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of alcohol.

He was also held on two other outstanding arrest warrants issued by Wilmington and Lowell. He was held overnight to appear in Woburn Court Wednesday.

Insp. Jepson arrested a Somerville man on narcotics-related charges Friday evening after stopping him on Middlesex Avenue near Dinette World. Wayne Breton of Chester Street, Somerville was charged with possession of a class B substance believed to be cocaine and possession of a class B substance with intent to distribute along with motor vehicle violations.

Stephen P. Powell of Walker Street, Atkinson, N.H. was arrested at Wilmington Plaza, by Officer Robert Richter Saturday evening. Powell was charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of alcohol. He was bailed for a Monday appearance in Woburn Court.

About 3:15 a.m. Sunday, Officer Bob Richter arrested a local man after investigating an accident on Salem Street. William Fontaine, 19, of Biggar Avenue was charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of alcohol and failing to keep to the right of the road. He was later bailed for an appearance in court Monday morning.

Sunday at 7:30 a.m., Sgt. Palmer and Officer Richter arrested Rui Viegas, 19 of Chapel Street, Lowell after responding to a report of assault and battery to a local woman. Viegas was charged with being a disorderly person and was bailed for a Tuesday appearance at Woburn Court.

Additional assault and battery charges were to be obtained by the victim Monday morning.

Town of Stoneham: Hardy woodsmen and nob

Editor's Note: This is the first in a series of local town and city histories scheduled to appear at regular intervals in Middlesex East.

By JIM ROUILLARD
This series, like few good stories, starts at the end.

That is to say, it begins in Stoneham.

Or, more precisely, in what was once known as Charlestown End: a place that harbors tales of secret cellar burial and single-handed combat with wolves.

Stoneham, like Rome and Newton, was built on seven major hills.

Present inhabitants may be hard pressed to list those hills — for some have been known by various names since the time of the first European settlers.

Yet, in the past three centuries, you might have found your thrill on Stoneham's Blueberry Hill, lorded it on Nobility Hill, or simply displayed your competence fashioning shoes on Ability Hill.

Declared by early explorers (1629-1630) as "uncouth wilderness," beyond which "mountainous and rocky country" it seemed doubtful that settlement would ever extend, the present suburban town of about 20,000 people today provides the first significant glimpse of ponds, rocks and greenery to the traveler northbound from Boston on Interstate Route 93.

The region received its first decent press in the record of a jaunt by Governor John Winthrop and party, who explored and named Spot Pond in February 1632, lunching, by the way, solely on cheese.

"They went all about (the pond) upon the ice. From thence...they came to the top of a very high rock, beneath which...lies a goodly plain, part open land and part woody, from whence there is a fair prospect."

Winthrop and his companions relaxed at the rocky outcrop naming it "Cheese Rock, because when they went to eat somewhat they had only cheese (the Governor's man forgetting for haste, to put up some bread..."

But that was before any settlement by white men.

In a much later history of Stoneham, published in 1891, following the mid-century heyday of local manufacturers' prosperity, author William B. Stevens maintains "The foundations of Stoneham were laid not by men of culture and wealth, but by the brawn and courage of laborious yeomen."

A still later historian, Lemuel W. Standish, in his "Stoneham, The Friendly Town," (1937) embellishes Stevens' somewhat self-satisfied view, adds romance and nostalgia with a heavy hand, but also provides humor as well.

The region's earlier population (Standish's "warlike aborigines," having long since departed, the historian apparently felt safe in exhorting them:

"The history of all the past (before 1620) was buried in oblivion and for ages these hills and valleys had been peopled by a race so primitive and barbarous that they have left behind them hardly a trace of their existence."

Further, by 1937, Standish felt confident in declaring the suburb to be "in no wise a 'High Hat' town," and took notable pride, that "on the moral side it has no saloons and grants no licenses for debauchery."

Saloons and debauchery aside, there had been, as with most Puritans, at least occasional drinking of "spirituous liquors." Stevens reports that the first meeting house in Stoneham, constructed in 1726, a year after the town's incorporation and separation from Charlestown, was built by men who were "of strong religious convictions...in the main...severe and exemplary in their morals, but in some respects more convivial than their descendants."

"On the day when the inhabitants assembled to raise the frame of the meeting house, it must have been an occasion of great hilarity and festivity. Refreshments were served, and

True stories are best

By EUGENE A. SYLVESTER

WAKEFIELD — There are true stories and there are truer stories. And, as any real sage will tell you, it's usually the truer stories that get written about.

Just ask Phyllis M. Falls, author of the compelling children's book, RACCOON CALLERS ARE NICER THAN RACCOON COLLARS. Writing about a "real life experience" that happened to her daughter, Falls said that while the book was just recently published, "I've been writing it over the years."

While she doesn't consider herself a writer, Falls felt that "this was a story that I wanted to tell." After all, it not only involved her real daughter, it also involved "other members of the family."

Those "other members" were the raccoons — mother and children — who would venture into the Falls's backyard for their nightly meal. As Falls wrote: "And we'd watch as she taught them to lift up the lid/Of our garbage pail... just the way she did."

The book — written in verse — describes how "They/Rushed through/The doorway/Expecting a treat./And found us all ready/With goodies to eat/Which Alita proceeded to hand out, with care."

However, Alita (not her real name) wasn't careful enough; because "Then suddenly, one piece of cookie was snatched/By both rackies at once, and Alita got scratched./Her finger was cut by a tooth or a claw;/And just how it happened, nobody saw."

And there — as they say — "is the rub." Because "We had to hear Dr. Goodman say, 'A tetanus shot, without any doubt./And rabies, of course, cannot be ruled out.'"

Rabies? In 1969? "Oh, but surely," I said, "the chances are slight./Of her getting rabies from that scratch or bite./I expected a smile, but he just shook his head. 'That's a chance you can't take, not with rabies," he said. "Because, the fact is, there just isn't a cure./That's the reason why we have to be sure."

Prior to this "incident," the raccoons had always been "welcomed guests." And while they weren't "unwelcomed," the doctor informed the Falls family that "Those two little rabies," he said. "Because, And carefully watched for two weeks, to see./After that, if they're healthy, they can be set free./But, if some sign of rabies begins to show./During that time, then of course, we'll it requires no flight of the imagination to suppose that the pious enthusiasm of the earnest workers...may have been somewhat stimulated by liberal potations, for besides a quantity of cider they consumed five gallons of rum."

The town consisted of about 50 households at the time, with an estimated population of 250. Women and children aside, Stevens leaves it to the reader to determine the median consumption of cider and rum by the male workers as they raised the new community's first place of public worship.

Standish's attitude to his forebears and their way of life appears a little ambivalent at times:

"Measured by the progress and attainments of the nineteenth and twentieth centuries their lives must have been barren indeed. The tomahawks and warwhoops of the red men at times varied the monotony of their existence, but the great and vital question, which more than any other seemed to have absorbed the attention of our ancestors, was religion."

It is difficult to judge, moreover, whether Stevens is proud, or slightly ashamed, of the first, rustic settlers at Charlestown End, his own maternal ancestors included.

Later chroniclers of Stoneham history underscore the picture of a rough life-style during the first phase of its settlement. Add to these a few anecdotes from Stevens' work — and you have a picture of rugged early days, lonelier and cruder than those enjoyed by the inhabitants of Stoneham's sister settlements of the same period.

Stevens provides, however, imaginative and entertaining accounts, in one case, of the exploits, retold by family legend, of one of the region's first settlers, Thomas Gery, established as living in Charlestown's End in 1678, and described by Stevens as both "cunning and courageous."

One morning, according to Stevens, after Gery's "attention was attracted by the suspicious movements of an Indian lying concealed behind a log, he extended through the partly open door his coat and hat in such a manner as to draw the arrow of the unwary savage, and the next instant the ball had whizzed from his unerring musket with fatal effect. Fearing the vengeance of the tribe should they discover the dead body, he buried it in his own cellar."

Another time, according to Stevens, Gery, returning from woodcutting, had been invited to stay overnight with a neighbor, for a wolf pack had been heard in the area. But "Gery, thinking of his family and their anxiety should he stay away, declined the invitation, and shouldering his axe, started on. He had proceeded but a short distance before he was greeted by the howls of the wild beasts."

"On they came, we can imagine, with gleaming eyes and lolling tongues, thirsting for human blood. A weak man, a cowardly man, might have been demoralized and lost; not so the hardy woodsman."

"Backing himself against a tree and swinging his axe to the right and left, he soon cleared a space and drove away the brutes. The next morning, on returning to the spot, he found the carcasses of four dead wolves."

Charlestown End grew very slowly: by 1725 the number of taxed male inhabitants was 65, according to Standish. In that year 54 men petitioned the General Court to set off the area, consisting of one sawmill, one grist mill, one school house and about 50 houses, as a separate town.

The reason for separation was the area's remoteness from the meeting houses of Charlestown and South Reading. (Wakefield). The Act of Incorporation recognized this, and established the separate community, its new name presumably taken from that of Stoneham, England.

know/That she'll need the shots. It's more than just one./And I'll tell you right now, those shots are not fun."

Falls now recalls that the mother raccoon — for the first three or four years — was originally referred to as Charlie Brown. "But then she had babies, so we began calling her Charlene."

After Charlene — who was "our little Blackie" — came "Friendly and Shy" who "were fat balls of fur, with bright shining eyes/In little masked faces ... they varied in size .../The two that were smaller were also the bolder./As they stood at the doorway, shoulder to shoulder./Each looking at us with a bright friendly grin."

As for when she first decided to "write" the story, Falls recalls how "we first started to tell the story to friends, and people would say, why don't you write a book, because it made quite a story."

Finally, "my daughter and I began to fool around with it over the years, but it didn't really gel until I decided to put it in the form of a poem. Then it just flowed along."

Before that, she noted, "I had tried to write a straight prose narrative. But it didn't have the right feeling. In fact, most people who have read it think it's unique because it is a poem."

A number of publishers, however, disagreed with Falls, telling her in fact that "poetry was on its way out, that it was old-fashioned. They felt it might have worked better if it had been in prose."

With the incident happening in 1969, Falls did not start to write the story "until 1971, 1972." However, the final draft was not completed until 12 years later, in 1984.

Regarding her "writing career," Falls traced it back to "before I was married. I went to the Cambridge Center for Adult Education and I took a night course in short story writing."

That particular course, she said, led her to write a story about "the snow rollers," which she completed in 1939, and "hoped to have illustrated because most people don't know what a snow roller is."

Growing up as she did on a farm in Maine, "that was time when people didn't have cars on the road. And even if they did they were Model T Fords, and the roads were all dirt roads and back roads."

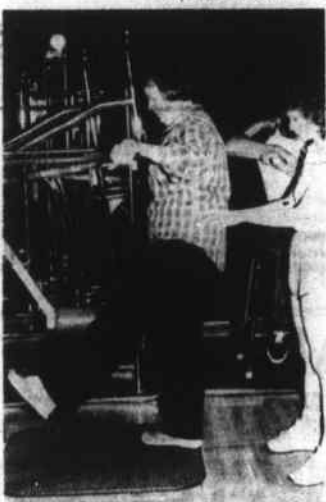

In the winter, therefore, "you put your cars and wagons up, and you used horse sleds." However, "the snow still needed to be packed down. And you used these big drums to do that with."

Before people "took to using snow rollers, they were either

PROFESSIONAL TRAINING

Three courses designed to prepare adults for professional certification in production management will be offered this fall at Merrimack College.

The courses are designed to prepare students to sit for the American Production and Inventory Control Society's (APICS) examination for certification. APICS certification is recognized in the industry to mark a high level of understanding and knowledge of materials management techniques. The fall 1986 testing date is Nov. 8. Merrimack College is an authorized testing site for the APICS certification examinations.

On Monday evenings, John Gottwald, materials manager for Digital Corporation, will be the instructor of a course in material requirements planning. The class will meet on Monday evenings, from Sept. 8 through Nov. 3.

Capacity management will be the focus of a course to be offered on Tuesday evenings, from Sept. 2 through Nov. 4. Drew Doherty, senior materials supervisor for Apollo's distribution division in Exeter, N.H., will serve as instructor.

The third course, in master planning, will begin on Thursday, Sept. 4 and continue through Nov. 6. The master planning course will be taught by William Batchelder, department chief in charge of firmware engineering and manufacturing, technical-professional continuing education and software support systems.

Each class will meet from 6:30 to 9:15 P.M. Tuition for each course is $210, which includes all books and materials.

Enrollment for each class is limited. For additional information or to register, interested individuals should call the Merrimack College Special Programs Office at 683-7111.

OLD STURBRIDGE VILLAGE

A Grand Celebration, a special day for grandparents and grandchildren, will be offered for the first time on September 7, at Old Sturbridge Village, Sturbridge, Mass. The day's activities will focus on ways to collect and share historical information from all generations.

Hands-on activities related to historical object tales, family stories, and family records will be offered at the Museum Education Department at 11 A.M., 1 P.M. and 3 P.M. Grandparents and their grandchildren and other family members will enjoy participating in these workshops.

Storyteller and Musician Doug Lipman of Cambridge, Mass. will present "Stories Across Generations: Traditional Folk Tales — Tales from People's Lives" in the Visitor Center Theater at 12 and 2 P.M.

Most events at no additional charge beyond Old Sturbridge Village admission. For more information, call 617-347-3362.

Old Sturbridge Village is a living history museum that recreates a New England town of the 1830s. The museum covers over 200 acres with more than 40 restored buildings where people in historical dress demonstrate the life, work, and community celebrations of early nineteenth-century New Englanders.

Old Sturbridge Village is open year-round. Summer hours are 9 A.M. to 5 P.M. daily through October 26. Admission is $8.50 for adults, $4.00 for children ages 6-15, and children under age 6 are admitted free. Old Sturbridge Village is located on Route 20 west in Sturbridge, Mass., near Exit 9 of the Massachusetts Turnpike and Exit 3 of Interstate 84.

JOB TRAINING

Job training courses for adults who need new or upgraded skills or advanced technical training will be offered at Minuteman Tech evenings and during the day beginning in early September. Registration for all courses is now being accepted.

Evening job training courses will be offered in Automated Office Skills, including Word Processing, Data Base Management and Telecommunications. Also offered in the evening will be courses in Computer Programming, Drafting and Computer Aided Drafting (CAD), Electronics Test Technician Training, Florist Shop Training, Digitized Typesetting, Graphic Design and Phototypesetting.

In addition, there will be evening courses in Hotel/Restaurant Management, Machine Shop/CNC, Mold Making, Advanced Welding Certification, Medical/Dental Office Procedures and Medical Transcription. Students who successfully complete selected courses are eligible for credits offered by Bunker Hill Community College.

Daytime courses will be available for those who wish to be trained as Dental Assistants or Nursing Assistants. A daytime course in Telecommunications will also be offered. All women and men 18 years and older, regardless of where they live, are eligible to participate in these Minuteman Adult Technical Training/Regional Occupational Program (MATT/ROP) courses.

Information about MATT/ROP job training courses may be obtained by contacting the Minuteman Tech Community Education Office, 758 Marrett Road, Lexington, telephone 861-7150.

COMMUNITY BOATING

Sailing on the Charles River continues until Nov. 1 at Community Boating in Boston. A 30-day membership cost $50 and includes all instruction and use of boats. Sailing hours are from 1 p.m. to sunset, Monday through Friday and 9 a.m. to sunset on Saturday and Sunday. For more information and an application stop by the boat-house, located on the Esplanade between the Hatch Shell and the Longfellow Bridge, or call 523-1038.

ORCHESTRA REHEARSAL

The Concord Orchestra, Richard Pittman Conductor, will begin its 1986-87 season with a rehearsal on Sept. 2, 7:45 p.m. at 51 Walden St., Concord, Mass. Any experienced string players, including harp, are most welcome to attend.

The orchestra rehearses weekly on Tuesday evenings and will give eleven performances from Oct. 24 through May 16. The music in rehearsal on Sept. 2 will include Wagner's Die Walkure, Act I. For more information, call Kathy Chick at 263-7446.

RAPUNZEL

Billerica Community Theatre announces their fall children's play, the classic, "Rapunzel and the Witch", directed by Lucinda Davis. Auditions will be Sunday, Sept. 7 and Tuesday, Sept. 9 at 7 P.M. Dale Hall, First Congregational Church, 18 Andover Road, Billerica. Mixed cast age 15 and up. For information call 663-9248.

WAKEFIELD COURSES

Fisher Junior College, Division of Continuing Education will begin a new eight week term on Monday, Sept. 15, at its Wakefield Extension located at Our Lady of Nazareth Academy, 13 Jordan Ave., Wakefield.

Courses to be offered include: Preparatory Mathematics, Principles of Marketing, Word Processing Operations (I), College English I, and Principles of Investments. Students are welcome to take courses in an area of special interest or begin their pursuit toward an Associate Degree in Business Administration, Accounting, Computer Applications, or Medical Assisting. Students may also work toward a Certificate in Word Processing/Office Systems.

These courses are offered in the evening so that students may keep their full-time jobs or other day-time commitments. Financial aid and veteran's benefits are available for eligible students. For further information, call 245-0061.

CAREER PLANNING

A Career Planning Workshop will be offered next month through the Bay State Center for Displaced Homemakers at the Lowell YMCA. An Orientation Meeting open to the public will be held at 10 A.M. on Sept. 8 at the YWCA, 206 Rogers Street, Lowell.

EVENING COURSES

Introduction to Marketing, Foundations of Medical Science, Psychology of Women, and Real Estate Appraisal are among the 320 courses to be given in Burlington this fall through Northeastern University's part-time undergraduate college. Classes are offered at both the Burlington campus and at Burlington High School.

Students may take just one course or embark on a program leading to a certificate, associate's degree or bachelor's degree, with no admission requirements or entry examinations.

Courses are offered in the areas of Business Administration, Liberal Arts, Health Professions and Sciences, and Law Enforcement. Tuition is $85 per credit hour.

The fall quarter begins Monday, Sept. 29 and lasts 12 weeks. Most classes meet once a week for two hours and ten minutes.

Students may register at the Burlington campus, South Bedford Street (Route 3), Thursday, Sept. 4 from 5:30 to 8 p.m.; and Monday and Tuesday, Sept. 8 and 9, from 5:30 to 8 p.m.

For more information and a complete listing of fall courses and times, contact University College, Northeastern University, 437-2400.

FREE TRAINING

The Women's Technical Institute trains women for careers in the growing high tech industry. Free training slots are available for the fall term for eligible low income women. Women on welfare and low income or unemployed Boston women can apply for free training in either electronics or drafting. To find out more about women in technical careers and to see if you qualify for free training, call the Women's Technical Institute at 266-2243.

LINE DANCE

The fall presentation will be "Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat," to be performed by adults and children grades six and above. This musical will be presented for two weekends in November. Auditions will be held in September; dates and times will be announced soon.

The adult drama "Desperate Hours" will be presented in February. The children's spring production, "Pinocchio," will take place in March. An adult comedy, "Arsenic and Old Lace," will open in May. And the summer 1987 production will be the well-known musical "Brigadoon."

Subscription season tickets for these productions are now available. To order a set of subscription tickets, send $25 to the Andover Theatre Company, P.O. Box 147, Ballardvale Station, Andover, Ma. 01810.

Additional information about the upcoming performances can be obtained by calling the Theatre Company hotline (617) 475-4221 or from the president of the Andover Theatre Company, Ellen Zipeto of Andover.

"TINKERBELLE THE TIGER" is not amused at the approach of the Cat Burglar as performed by the students of Children's Drama Workshop this past June. Pictured are Catherine Nigro and Ryan Hurley of Reading. For information about upcoming fall programs, call 944-7241.

Drama Center offers fall courses

The Children's Drama Workshop, 19 Robin Road, Reading, marks its 15th anniversary with the beginning of the fall-winter semester on September 15th. Taught by Irene Ehl, the Workshop is for children from 7 to 17 years of age.

The Workshop year is divided into two 15-week semesters. The first semester is devoted to theater games, improvisations and pantomimes. "Through the playing of theater games," according to Mrs. Ehl, "and the intuitive unrehearsed acting in improvisations and pantomimes, the student explores his own potential by sharpening his concentrations, expressing his emotions with body and voice and using his imagination, thus creating on three levels — the intellectual, the physical and the intuitive."

The second semester concentrates on rehearsing monologues, scenes and plays for a public performance in June. During this period the student learns the art of focus and motivation, the building of stage character and stage movement. Mrs. Ehl states, "Public performance will raise the student's whole level of understanding and skills experienced during the first semester. The importance of both semesters is that together they work towards one goal, the total growth of the student in creativity, self-confidence and discipline."

Also, by becoming aware of the variety of human experiences through the playwright's eyes and by acting out some of these situations, the children learn more about themselves and the world around them.

Children's Drama Workshop students have acted in local community and summer theaters, playing major roles in comedy, drama and musical comedy.

Most recently, Ron Bashford of Reading, an alumnus of Children's Drama Workshop, has been acting professionally with a summer stock company in Newburyport, Mass.

Irene Ehl, founder of the Children's Drama Workshop, is a certified teacher and a graduate of Boston University with a degree in theater arts and speech. She has been an active member of the Quannapowitt Players of Reading for many years, both as an actress and director. Mrs. Ehl also directs for other community theaters and has acted and directed in the New England Theater Conference.

The Workshop is located near the intersection of Routes 93 and 128 making it accessible from all directions.

For more information concerning the Workshop, please call Irene Ehl, 19 Robin Road, Reading at 944-7241.

At the Boston Tea Party Ship & Museum, there is no better place to combine a good time with a history lesson than aboard the full-scale working replica of the Tea Party Ship. Visitors say history comes alive for them when they toss tea chests overboard in their own symbolic protest. Audio-visual presentations in the adjacent museum and lively discussions with colonial-costumed guides add to the feeling of having really been at Boston's most famous protest over 200 years ago. Complimentary tea, of course. Located at the Congress Street Bridge, on HarborWalk, Boston's waterfront walking trail.

True stories

housebound or they got out on snow shoes. Now a number of magazines have had stories about the snow rollers."

Prior to her "snow roller story," Falls in 1936 both wrote and illustrated "a book about the rabbit, Pete. That was written in poetry too, but it wasn't the same type of children's book as those that are being written today."

Falls feels that her "raccoon story" is probably her "best effort." However, a major change has occurred in her family's "relationship" with the raccoons. "We still feed them but we try not to be so attached to them. Before we would give them names, and now we don't do that."

The reason? "Over the years you see families come and go. You get used to the mothers and babies, and you see a mother with five babies at the beginning of the season and you've named them and pretty soon one of them isn't around anymore. Either that or the mother herself will just disappear and you see the babies coming by themselves."

Growing up with animals on the farm, Falls said, certainly "prepared" her for her "raccoon families" that eventually prompted her to write the book. In fact, when "Blackie" had her children, she would "introduce them to us."

At the beginning of her book, Falls tells the reader immediately what she is writing about. "RACCOON CALLERS? Yes, indeed, Raccoon Callers. I mean just what I say. Raccoon Callers are SO MUCH nicer than Raccoon Collars... any old day!"

And "Still... just hearing it said, it might be hard telling/What I DO mean, exactly... it's all in the spelling./Spelled O with an A, then it's something to wear./But if you go to the door to see who is there/Well, that kind of a caller, with an A and an E, is the kind that I'm saying is nicer, you see."

Which is precisely why Falls spent over a decade "perfecting this story. It had to be told."

MOVIE REVIEWS Rochelle Flynn

Stand By Me Short Takes

Stand By Me starring Wil Wheaton, River Phoenix, Corey Feldman, Jerry O'Connell, Kiefer Sutherland. Directed by Rob Reiner. Screenplay by Raynold Gideon, Bruce Evans. Produced by Gideon, Evans, Andrew Scheinman. Rated R (profanity).

Since most movies based on Stephen King's writings are of the sub-standard drive-in variety, it is surprising to learn that he wrote the novella "The Body" upon which Stand By Me is based. Surprising because this is a sensitive, enchanting story of friendship and growing pains.

While nostalgia may be a seductive movie device, director Rob Reiner managed to look back at life in the Fifties without injecting a lot of unnecessary emotional baggage into the film. He didn't need to, as this simple story of four friends on an overnight adventure is all the audience needs to connect with the lost remnants of childhood we all share.

Richard Dreyfuss is the narrative thread that pulls the movie together. He is a writer spinning yarns about his childhood, and it is through his eyes we realize that our strongest and best friendships were often in our youth. The young Dreyfuss is portrayed by Wil Wheaton with a depth and intelligence not usually seen before the camera in young boys.

Wheaton's friends manage, for the most part, to avoid stereotype, although Jerry O'Connell as the chubby, faint hearted one doesn't quite succeed. However, River Phoenix as a smart, sensitive boy pegged as a delinquent because of family ties, is a stand-out. And Corey Feldman as the daredevil seeking approval by his stunts leaves a feeling of sadness - that he never had a chance to be anything but a loser.

Another pleasant surprise in this film is Donald Sutherland's son, Kiefer Sutherland, as the town bully. His hardened demeanor and rigid leadership shows a lot of promise as to what we can expect in the future from this swaggering redhead.

While there are a few contrived moments, Stand By Me is one of the highlights of this summer. A sort of American Graffiti for a younger generation, it completely captures the rituals of the pre-teen youth, and does so by admitting that even kids have brains.

Short Takes

The Fly is a gross-out scarefest laced with tragic overtones and may well be the quintessential horror flick of all times. Jeff Goldblum, in his finest performance to date, plays a scientist who manages to get mixed up, literally, with a fly, and the results are not for the faint of heart. Rated R. ****

A Fine Mess is a movie for people who like visual humor and don't care much about the plot. But if you think lowbrow comedy that relies on a fast forward button and cartoon-like

WIL WHEATON (L.), RIVER PHOENIX (2ND FROM L.), Jerry O'Connell (pointing) and Corey Feldman (r.) are four boys who have set out to find the body of a missing youth in Columbia Pictures' "Stand By Me." Based on the novella, "The Body," by Stephen King, the film was directed by Rob Reiner from a screenplay by Raynold Gideon and Bruce A. Evans, and produced by Andrew Scheinman, along with Evans and Gideon.

characters is silly, than skip this tale of drugged horses, the Mafia and roller-skating waiters. Rated PG. * 1/2

Armed and Dangerous takes the security guard business and does for it what Moving Violations did for driving schools: nothing. John Candy, a funny man, is lost amid the insipid plot and dialogue. Rated PG-13. *

One Crazy Summer is a silly flick set in Nantucket that wastes the talents of Demi Moore and John Cusack. Try as it might, it is not the Animal House of the surf and sand crowd. Rated PG. *

Flight of the Navigator spins

a magical tale of time travel, space travel and intergalactic friendships. It is also one of the few movies on the market that will leave you feeling happy, but not manipulated. Rated PG. ****

Tea in the Harem may try to present a realistic story of two French teenagers who are trapped by poverty and their own lack of ambition, but in reality is pretentious and sexist. The awards it won in France can't make up for the overall dullness. Not rated. *

Out of Bounds is a poor imitation of a Hitchcock-like thriller that conveys a convoluted tale of murder, mayhem and drug smuggling in Los Angeles. Hurting more than helping is Anthony Michael Hall, who may as well have been sleepwalking. Rated R. *

Haunted Honeymoon is top-heavy with silliness, but a few funny bits and Dom Deluise in drag help even things out. While this comic romp through the horror flick genre won't rattle any bones, it's a pleasant enough - if forgettable - excursion. Rated PG.

Nothing in Common is a good title for this flick, as it bears little resemblance to the comedy we expect from stars Jackie Gleason and Tom Hanks. A woeeful tale about divorce and the generation gap, it would have been less confusing, to the audience and the cast, if this were a clear cut comedy or a drama, but not a dramedy. Rated PG. **

Howard the Duck couldn't make the transition from comic books to the silver screen without laying an egg. The cigar-chomping fowl was transformed into a cute, but bland, movie star and let loose in a ridiculous movie about fearsome aliens and an all-girl rock band. Rated PG. *

Maximum Overdrive may be an improvement over most films based on Stephen King's stories, but it doesn't make it as serious entertainment. Scaremonger King directed this tale of machinery gone wild, but couldn't keep up the frightening momentum of the first 45 minutes, resulting in a decent drive-in flick, but only a fair-to-middling feature film. Rated R. **

Aliens is the kind of flick that will have you holding onto your popcorn and your date to keep you from leaping out of your seat. An action-adventure-thriller, this sequel is more intensely scary than the original, and what plot flaws there are have been smoothed over with special effects and precisely timed shockers. Rated R. * * 1/2

About Last Night could be the signature film of love stories for this decade, as it deals with young people afraid of commitment. The language is as raw as the sentiment, but the humor alternates nicely between intelligent and intense. Rated R. ****

Big Trouble in Little China, a flick high on action and low on substance, is too convoluted and silly to be a decent dose of escapism. The funny concepts, such as Kurt Russell's parody of the macho American hero, is lost in a nearly indecipherable storyline. Rated PG-13. **

Ruthless People is a fast paced, coarse, irreverent comedy that never loses its ability to make you laugh, even as the antics become more outrageous. A modernization of O. Henry's "Ransom of Red Chief," it's scurrilous Danny DeVito who refuses to pay two desperate young kidnappers to release his wife, a flashy, loud-mouthed Bette Midler. Rated R. ****

Woodchips

By ANTHONY MANCONI

Folks, you are reading the column of a person who can't sing or whistle. I bet my aunt Maria is adding, "and can't write either!" When my friend Lou O'Malley married his lovely wife Gail, he nervously asked Fr. Bruce Craig, "Is it 'kissstomary' to 'cuss' the bride now?" "Not yet," replied Fr. Bruce, "but soon!"

Helen Wilson, R.N., and Dorothy Gatti, R.N., are new readers of Woodchips. I have the greatest respect and admiration for all nurses, their dedication to duty and their awesome responsibilities make them wonderful persons.

Do you remember Ward Bond as the Wagon Master in that great series 'Wagon Train'? Well, Bob Coleman looks just like Ward Bond, and Abbott Rowe looks like Wishbone. "You're right," said my friend Frank Mazzoni of Wilmington. "Woodchipper," he added, "if your ears were a little shorter you'd look like one of the 'mules' in the 'Twenty Mule Team' program. "Frank," I told him, "you ought to be on the stage, the 'first' one out of 'town.'"

I'm not ashamed to say that I wasn't 'good' at any sport in my younger days. Even as a boxer, some of the fight fans would yell, "Hit him now Woodchipper, the wind is with you!" One night in Lowell, I looked across the ring, saw my opponent, and my knees started to buckle, my teeth started to chatter and I broke out in a cold sweat. My manager, Joe Aloisi, tried his best to reassure me, saying "Don't panic, if that clown was any good he wouldn't be fighting you tonight." After each round Joe would say, "You're doing great, he didn't lay a glove on you." I was wondering why my ears were ringing, my eyes were puffed up and my nose had shifted 10 degrees out of center, so coming back to my corner after the fifth round, Joe said it again, "He didn't lay a glove on you." "Do me a favor Joe," I pleaded, "keep your eye on the referee because someone in that ring is punching the daylight out of me."

In my career as a boxer I won only two watches. I came across one of them in an old bureau drawer and brought it to a watch repair shop, the owner looked the watch over then shook it a couple of times and said to me, "Hey, you didn't get this watch for 'winning' did you?" He was a comedian I'm sure because the sign over the shop door said, "If your watch doesn't 'tick' to you, 'tock' to us!"

I went to the Beverly Airport with Chris Giannino who is taking flying lessons. He looked over the side of the Piper Cub and exclaimed to the instructor, "Boy, those people down there sure look like ants!" The instructor looked then shouted, "They are ants, we haven't taken off yet!" While standing on the edge of the field a pretty lady pilot said to me, "Do you wanna fly?" "I sure do." "Here," she said handing me a jar full of them, "Pick anyone you want."

I'm married 25 years and I'm still in love with the same woman. If my wife ever finds out she'll kill me!

Folks, 'drinking' will never wash away your troubles, it will only tend to 'irrigate' them. It's a good thing that I write Woodchips, the only time I get to open my mouth at my house is when I 'yawn.'

I must have been transferred more times from one ship to another in WWII than anyone from the Middlesex East area. I didn't mind it one bit except when I left the 'Battleship Texas.' She was considered to be the 'Luckiest Ship' in the 'Navy.' She never sustained a direct hit in two wars, WWI and WWII.

My friend Clem Peroni, U.S. Marine Corps, was lucky to stay with the Texas, serving in the Middle East.

A neighbor of mine was living the life of Riley. He was working two jobs, on the bowling team Tuesday and Thursday nights, golf with the boys on Saturday, and baseball or football game on Sunday. He was really 'busy as a bee.' Well, he came home one day and found his 'honey gone.'

If you're thinking your parents are in the way and it would be better to 'warehouse' them, just think of this, if you're lucky enough to get old, someone will think that you would be better off 'warehoused.' There isn't a fireplace in the world that can warm a person with a 'cold heart.'

Would you buy a new car by just calling a dealer on the phone and telling him the make, model and color that you want? That's the way it was many years ago when my father bought a car from the late Sam Waugh. Sam was a man of integrity, making sure the car was 'right,' or you wouldn't get it until it was right. His son Richard is a mechanic and he fixes cars with the same philosophy, "Like your life depends on it!" Richard and his lovely wife Terrie believe as I do, that the slogan of the past, 'made in America,' will become again the hallmark of quality in the very near future.

One of the reasons for Woodchips is to remind us to take time to 'laugh.' It is the music of the soul. What this country needs is 'dirtier' fingernails, 'cleaner' minds and more 'smiling' faces.

"Another failure," Thomas A. Edison was told by his assistant when the 4000th experiment for a workable filament burned up. "Oh no," responded Edison, "it's another success, for I found something else that doesn't work." Folks, it isn't the failures that count, but rather what you do to 'overcome' them. If you have a talent, don't keep it a secret, 'share it!' Doing business without advertising is like kissing a girl in the dark, you know what you are doing but nobody else does.

Joseph and his brother Chris Giannino, with their cousin Johnny Hogswell, wrote a comedy show borrowing jokes, puns and quips from Woodchips. They promised me a free ticket to their opening show. One near the exit gentlemen, I can't stand my own jokes.

It sure is a small world. I remember my mother mentioning her childhood friend Leanora. Well, I met nieces, cousins and relatives of this wonderful late friend of my mother. They are Dolly O'Melia, Helen Mercurio, Celia Cogliano, Margaret Voci and Carmella Petrillo, all living in the Middlesex East area. Don't faint, aunt Maria of Wilmington, they love Woodchips!

Thompson Club swim team wins 2nd place

The Thomson Tiger Swim team of North Reading made a strong showing at the North Shore Swim League's Swimming and Diving Championships. Coming in a close second, the Thomson swimmers gave the Corinthian Yacht Club a run for first place. The Thomson Club girl Medley Relay team of Missy Pulling, Melanie Paarz, Jean Todisco, and Jackie Cavanaugh set a long standing league record. Jackie Cavanaugh also broke her own record in the 11 and 12 backstroke event. Missy Pulling came through with five place finishes in the 13 and 14 events.

Other Thomson Tiger medalists included Jason Gray, Mark Dewan, Phil Wuorinen, Shelly Pulling, Teri Bechick, Matt Specht, Joe Palladino, Ryan Milles, Amy Cohen, and Kerianne Forrest.

Job training available

Are you: A high school dropout? Stuck on welfare? Discouraged about the future? If so, the ERI Beginnings Program may be the start you need in preparing for a brighter future.

The Employment Resources Inc. (ERI) Beginnings Program is accepting applications for its fourth cycle, which begins in October. The program will serve 16 to 19 year old pregnant and parenting teens who are high school drop-outs and recipients of Aid To Families With Dependent Children (AFDC) or General Relief (GR).

The Beginnings Program provides the following services: GED classes to complete high school (homebound tutoring is also available); support services such as child care, transportation, and a weekly cash stipend; vocational counseling and career exploration; job training placements; and follow-up services. Through a network of community-based organizations, weekly two-hour workshops are also provided around issues which affect many pregnant and parenting teens, such as: improving parenting skills, managing stress, coping with depression, building self-esteem, protecting children from abuse, losing weight, quitting smoking, and virtually any other topic which is requested by a Beginnings participant. Former participants are also welcomed to attend any or all of the ongoing workshops after completion of the program.

For further information, please call Melinda Mancini, Program Manager, or Cathy Qualitz, Beginnings Counselor, at 492-0591.
